Costliest Flood Over Its Peak

Seventeen Deaths Have Been Caused, Damage Will Now Run Over 500 Millions

Surge Eastward

Flood Waters Surge on Eastward in Missouri

Kansas City, Mo., July 16 (AP)—The nation's costliest flood passed its destructive peak in the Kansas City area today and surged on eastward in Missouri.

But this metropolitan area of 900,000 persons and eastern and central Kansas still reeled from the impact of high waters.

The twin furries of fire and flood lashed at Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., for the fifth consecutive day.

Four industrial districts were under water. Transportation was crippled. The water supply was curtailed. A seven-block fire burned fiercely and destructively—just as it has since last Friday.

In eastern and central Kansas, the swollen Kansas river and its tributaries receded generally, permitting some of the thousands of homeless to return to mud-caked areas.

More than 75,000 persons in both states were driven from their homes. Many of the towns still lacked power and water facilities.

Eastward in Missouri, the Missouri river crest rolled towards the central part of the state.

Its destructive power was still there, but there were no great industrial cities in its path.

The towns along the river are still digging out of a flood that hit earlier this month. The Missouri runs 200 miles across the state from Kansas City on the west to St. Charles on the east. There it empties into the Mississippi.

All vehicular bridges between Kansas City and St. Charles are closed because of high water.

Seventeen Dead

Seventeen deaths have been caused by the gigantic flood.

Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of the army engineers, said last night it appeared the cost will run considerably over the $500,000,000 he estimated on his arrival from Washington last week-end.

President Truman, who request Pick to make a personal survey, designated flooded parts of both states as disaster areas.

Train and highway transportation in both states is drastically curtailed. The national guard, the Red Cross, army, air force, navy and coast guard have thrown men and money into the fight against high waters.

Aid has poured in from coast to coast and from Canada.

In Washington, President Truman asked Congress for a $15,000,000 emergency fund to help alleviate hardship in Missouri and Kansas.

A House Appropriations Committee was expected to approve the fund today.

In this metropolitan area, muddy waters still swirled over thousands of acres of industrial districts. Waters, ranging from a few feet to 20 feet deep, stretched over railroad yards, livestock industries, grain elevators, oil refineries, and manufacturing plants.

A fire, burning since Friday, has virtually destroyed 24 buildings and damaged others. At least 14 men suffered injuries battling the billowing flames in a flooded section.

It was fed by more than 1,000,000 gallons of oil.

The fire has engulfed lumberyards and the storage tanks of six oil companies. Intermittently firemen brought it under control only to have it flare up again.

Fires and Explosions

Explosions of fuel tanks and naphtha tanks forced many nearby residents, not in the flooded section, to flee their homes. The fire area is in both Kansas Citys.

Workers patrolled many of the plants in the four water-covered industrial areas.

At the Armour meat packing plant, some 30 men labored to save perishables and livestock. More than 300 cattle were being kept alive on a ramp above water.

Similar work was being carried on by other firms.

A dramatic fight on dikes apparently had saved the Kansas City, Kas., municipal water and light plant.

Bulldozers and trucks and cranes threw up protecting dikes to keep out river waters. Army engineers, National Guardsmen and hundreds of volunteers provided the labor.

Had the water swept into the plant, the city of 130,000 would have lost its water, light and power supply.

In Kansas, where flood waters are receding generally, some communities began the task of rehabilitation.

At the state capital of Topeka, volunteers still fought to save the city water plant. Mayor Kenneth Wilke estimated at least $100,-

Education Deterring Factor In Control of Delinquency

Declares Major Hanlon at Cornerstone Laying of New Marbletown Central School

Major Thomas J. Hanlon, superintendent of the Napanoch Institution for Male Mental Defectives, told a large crowd of town of Marbletown citizens Saturday afternoon at the cornerstone laying of the new Marbletown Central School, District No. 3, that education was one of the greatest deterring factors in the control of delinquency and he complimented the board of education and the citizens of the central district on their progressive step.

As principal speaker at the cornerstone laying ceremony, Major Hanlon spoke on the relation of education to delinquency.

His talk was heard by over 200 people who had gathered to witness the ceremony. Attending were the school officials, teachers, many educators from Kingston, New Paltz, Ellenville, Kerhonkson and several school superintendents and principals and a large number of the pupils who will attend the new school.

The ceremony took place at 3 o'clock with Lloyd R. LeFever, attorney for the district, acting as master of ceremonies. Mr. LeFever introduced the members of the board and District Superintendent Lester Roosa and also gave a resume of the work which had been required to bring the program to completion. Mr. LeFever was presented by President of the Board of Education Louis Larsen.

Ross K. Osterhoudt, who was born and grew up within a half mile of the site of the new central school, gave a very interesting and complete history of the 14 schools which will make up the new central district.

A summary of the plans for the new school building was given by Architect Harry Halverson. It is expected the new building will be ready for occupancy by February.

Children of the district, under the direction of the teachers, led in chorus singing. They opened the program with "The Star Spangled Banner" and as a concluding number sang "America." This portion of the program was under the direction of their teachers: Miss. Carrol Davis, Mrs. William Larsen, Mrs. Gladys Muller, Mrs. Mabel Osterhoudt, Mrs. Ber-

Price Rollbacks Near Showdown

House Returns Today to Continue Battle Over Controls

Washington, July 16 (AP) — The House returns today to its hammer-and-tongs fight over economic controls with administration forces still trying to rally from a series of setbacks suffered last week.

A showdown is due late today or tomorrow on the paramount question of price rollbacks.

At issue is a proposal to ban any future rollbacks on farm products and to kill a 10 per cent beef price rollback already in effect.

This proposed amendment to a bill which would extend the expiring defense production act has heavy backing from a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats. Several members of this group also favor a ban against rollbacks on industrial products.

This same coalition has beaten the administration on major amendments already considered during a week of House action, refusing to give President Truman power to pay subsidies on agriculture products, to impose quotas on beef slaughtering and to build defense plants.

Barring a move to kill price, wage and rent controls entirely—and that appears unlikely — one other big test remains before final House action. The coalition still wants to overhaul the Wage Stabilization Board and reduce its present powers.

With rollcall votes in prospect on many of the amendments already tentatively adopted, a final vote on the House bill is not expected before Thursday.

Meantime, administration forces hope, without much optimism, to pick up enough support on rollcall—recorded—votes to reverse some of the previous unrecorded actions. In any event, they want a clear cut record of how every member votes. They propose to use it in next year's congressional campaigns.

Republicans say they have nothing to give the President, while far short of what he wants, will, they claim, be adequate to control inflation. If it fails, they insist, the fault will be bad administration.

Veterans' Speaker Holds Turkey Is Vital to World

Strategic Importance Is Stressed During RVA Convention in This City

The explosive situation in world relations today was stressed by two speakers in this city Saturday afternoon at the annual convention of the Department of New York, Regular Veterans Association.

Speaking at the county court court house, Nuri Eren, director of Turkish Information, stressed the importance of Turkey and the Mediterranean area to the world today. The other speaker stressed the need for a world-wide respect of the rights of man, as opposed to the condition under which an inner circle of dictators can impose its direction upon millions of persons.

New Officers Named

The convention, which closed Saturday, was attended by approximately 50 delegates from the state. During the business session Saturday morning, Erwin P. Baker of Niagara Falls was re-elected department commander for his third term. E. Slayton of Albany was elected senior vice commander; Henry Borowski, Buffalo, junior vice commander; James Cody, Niagara Falls, quartermaster; Arthur O. Lipinski, Yonkers; judge advocate; Clement Romansky, Buffalo, chaplain; J. Jacowski, Syracuse, and William Bell, Yonkers, trustees.

Eren, who outlined the courageous fight of Turkey against Communist domination, stressed its strategic importance, noting that from its location three continents—Asia, Africa and Europe, are within bombing range.

Eren called for "no piece-meal surrender" to communism.

The other speaker was a medical doctor, who asked that his real name not be put in print for fear of retaliation against family or friends. A prominent physician who held high governmental positions in his country when it was a democracy, he was forced to flee when that country came under Communist domination. He chose to be identified by the fictitious name, Roman Munte, in any printed matter.

Munte, after developing the theme of changing world conditions, made several recommendations. He stressed that the United States is the "only real force" in the world capable of resisting Communist totalitarianism. Therefore, he said, the survival of the U. S. is not only an American problem, but a world problem as well.

"Efficient policies should be established in order to assure the survival of the U.S.A. and implicitly the world," he said.

Need True Association

"It is hypocrisy to speak about any association of free and democratic countries, with a clear knowledge of the fact that in some associated country a handful of dictators are substitute for the will of the people. . . . There is an urgent need for a true association of all nations of the world. Today governments and not peoples are represented in the United Nations. This is the reason for the inefficiency of the wonderful concept of the United Nations," he said.

Finally, commenting on the theory of American dollars supporting the world, he said, "Gifts do not make friends." Humans everywhere do not want and do not need food or money from you except in time of great distress," he said.

Hungary Told to Withdraw Two of Diplomats by U.S.

Washington, July 16 (AP)—In a new eye-for-an-eye move against a Soviet satellite, the United States has ordered Hungary to withdraw two of its diplomats, including the acting chief of the legation here.

A little over a week ago, Communist Hungary ordered out Albert W. Sherer, Jr., second secretary of the American legation at Budapest, and Miss Ruth Tryon, head of the U. S. Information Services there.

In evident retaliation, this government yesterday handed formal notice to Hungary to withdraw Lajos Nagy, second secretary and charge d'affaires, and Peter Varkonyi, attache.

In both instances, the method was the same—a declaration that each of the diplomats was "persona non grata," or unwelcome. Under long diplomatic tradition, that leaves the home country no alternative but to withdraw the person involved.

The State Department gave no details on why the two Hungarians are no longer welcome here, but a spokesman suggested that a reporter wouldn't miss badly if he drew his own conclusions about retaliation.

In general, the U. S. for more than a year has been following such a policy of retaliation in its relations with the Iron Curtain countries.

In some instances, the policy can't be followed too strictly. Iron Curtain countries generally have their staffs here down to skeleton size, and if Washington wants to maintain any sort of relations it cannot order everybody home. The State Department says, for example, that the Hungarian legation is down to a staff of four.

It may not be cut further if Hungary proposes a successor to Varkonyi who is acceptable to the U. S.

Nagy is to be replaced by Dr. Emil Weil, a new minister to whose assignment this country has assented. Weil will succeed Imbre Horvath, whose return to Hungary put Nagy in temporary charge. His expulsion becomes effective with Weil's arrival, expected shortly.

Hungary's action declaring Sherer and Miss Tryon unwelcome came after the U. S. rejected its request to bring them home. Prosecution witnesses had attempted to implicate both in the trial of Catholic Archbishop Groesz, convicted of working against the Red regime in Hungary.

More Casualties

Washington, July 15 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 64 more casualties in Korea. A new list (No. 355) reported 10 killed, 18 wounded, 21 missing in action, one prisoner of war and 14 injured in battle zone accidents.

Martial Law Ordered Following Riots in Tehran Against Harriman

Report Varies

Between Four and 16 Killed, 150 Hurt in Outbreaks

Tehran, Iran, July 16 (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh proclaimed martial law in Tehran today and ordered a big roundup of Communists following rioting in which between four and 16 persons were killed and more than 150 injured.

Police arrested more than 200 Leftists following last night's rioting, which started with a Communist demonstration protesting the arrival of President Truman's representative, W. Averell Harriman, for talks with Mossadegh on the oil nationalization crisis.

Reports varied on the number of casualties in last night's fighting between the Reds and Mossadegh's National Fronters. An official police communique said one policeman and three civilians were killed. Earlier, however, the government radio reported two policemen killed, and a high police source said 14 civilians were dead.

Plan 'Martyr Funerals'

Several bodies of members of the underground Communist Tudeh Party were reported carried away from the riot scene last night for Communist-style "martyr funerals."

The police communique said 59 policemen were injured seriously enough to be hospitalized, while 153 others suffered less serious hurts. It said six civilians were critically injured, 55 others hospitalized and "many others" released after treatment for minor injuries.

Harriman today laid a wreath on the tomb of the present Shah's father, the late Shah Reza Pahlevi, then went to the premier's home for the first meeting with Mossadegh.

Misses Violence

The U. S. envoy missed last night's violence. He and his wife were staying at a palace 12 miles up in the mountains.

The riot in Parliament square at dusk last night, which was broken up by police rifle fire and army tanks, gave violent impetus to the tension between the Communist Tudeh and Mossadegh's Nationalists which has existed since the nationalization law was passed in May.

The Mossadegh government, while standing firm on its program to get the AIOC out of Iran, is worried about Tudeh efforts to use the oil nationalization issue to spread Communist influence and disorder.

Today's crackdown on the Tudeh is the sharpest since the attempt to assassinate the Shah in 1949. Since then the Tudeh party has been outlawed but has continued to flourish under such front organizations as the "Partisans of Peace" and the "Society to Fight the Imperialist Oil Companies."

Groups Are Raided

Police raided the headquarters of both organizations in the early hours this morning and arrested several leaders. Left Wing papers also were suppressed by the police today and did not publish.

One of the chief reasons for the proclamation of martial law—which bans gatherings of more than three persons—was to prevent further demonstrations in connection with the funerals of the riot dead. Communists in the past here have spirited the bodies of any riot victims away and held them for big mass funerals.

President Truman's personal envoy told reporters on his arrival yesterday he is confident friendly talks can settle the dispute over Iran's nationalization of the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's billion-dollar properties.

Has Full Authority

Harriman said he had no specific proposals for a settlement, but emphasized he had full presidential authority to discuss all aspects of the nationalization dispute plus United States economic aid for Iran.

Harriman said he would stay in Tehran "as long as I can be useful" and that he would stop off in London on the way home for talks with the British government.

Work Is Resumed On Thruway Route

Solution of Problems at Crossing Point Now Underway

State engineers have resumed work on the solution of interchange and crossing problems at the point where the New York State Thruway is mapped to cross Routes 28 and 209, an engineer said today.

Much study has been required on the phase of the super highway which will extend south of the city from the point where the contract ends for the strip immediately north of the city.

The problems involve crossings of the Esopus creek, the O. & W., and Catskill Mountain Branch of the New York Central railroad, the Sawkill road and the two main highways plus the Lucas avenue turnpike.

The Thruway is tentatively scheduled to cross Route 28 about a quarter of a mile west of the intersection of the Sawkill road. It will cross Route 209 somewhere near the Wiltwyck Golf course. No calls for contract on the strip south of the city are on schedule, a state official said.

It was also announced today that a first major phase of the resurfacing of Route 212 at Woodstock was scheduled to start today. Work on the curbing has been started. The route through the village will be resurfaced for about one and a third miles. The Hudson River Construction Co., of Albany is the contractor.

License Plate Lost

The Kingston Truck and Sales Service, Broadway, Kingston, reported to the sheriff's office that a dealer license plate, No. 13-604, N. Y., had been lost.

Three Parked Vehicles Struck by Truck; Traffic Held Up 40 Minutes

Four people were injured in a four-car accident Saturday afternoon on the Rondout Creek bridge and traffic was tied up for 40 minutes while officers from the sheriff's office and city police cleared the bridge. During that time traffic was tied up as far south as Highland.

All four vehicles were traveling north at the time and the accident happened when three of the vehicles stopped at the Kingston end of the bridge for the traffic light. A truck coming north failed to stop and crashed into the parked cars.

All of the injured were in the car of James B. Boyle, 28, of 1051 Dewey Place, Elizabeth, N. J. They were en route to East Durham for vacation. After being treated at the Kingston Hospital by Dr. Maroon, they were able to proceed to their destination after summoning friends at East Durham to come to Kingston for them.

No Arrest Made

Injured were Rose Boyle, 21, who suffered cuts about the body, Ann Campbell, 21, slight body cuts, James B. Boyle, 28, cut on the left arm and Mrs. Ann Carr, 21, cuts about the legs.

There was no arrest.

The accident happened about 1 p. m. when the cars of Frank M. Snyder, 68, of R.D. 3, Newburgh, a truck operated by Gilbert Brewer, 32, of Munice, Ind., owned by James Buffin of Munice, Ind., and a car of James Boyle of Elizabeth, N. J., stopped for the traffic light. The Boyle car was completely wrecked. Mrs. Snyder, who accompanied her husband, was not injured.

Mayor's Committee Believes 90,000 in New York Use Dope

New York, July 16 (AP) — The mayor's committee on dope addiction estimated today that between 45,000 and 90,000 persons in New York city are using illicit dope.

The committee said narcotics addiction, especially among teenagers, is increasing in the city.

The report called for more severe penalties for dope sellers, and for wholesale revisions of federal and state penal statutes relating to sale.

The New York state Legislature recently enacted more stringent penalties.

The committee, appointed by Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri last Dec. 11, made the recommendations in a 75-page report on "study on drug addiction among teen-agers."

The committee was under direction of Thomas F. Murphy, former city police commissioner and newly-appointed federal judge.

As one means of combatting dope addiction, the report proposed that—"consistent with civil liberty"—all known narcotics addicts be subjected to "compulsory treatment without stigma of criminality, much as is done with insane persons."

The committee estimated there are up to 3,000 dope sellers in the city. This was based on the number of arrests.

The report said "drastic punishment, such as death or life imprisonment" for narcotic sellers "is not advisable because it would seriously impair the certainty of punishment of offenders."

Illicit supplies of narcotics, the report said, can "most strategically and economically be reduced by increased activity by the federal government along two lines: Effective international agreements, the enforcement of which abroad will be assured by appropriate action of the State Department; and concentration of internal effort by the Federal Narcotics Bureau against the importation and interstate distribution rather than intra-state sale of narcotic drugs."

Reds Fufill Agreement on Neutrality of Conference Site, UN Says

Red Generals Pose

Newsmen on the Spot Say Both Sides Are in Harmony

(By The Associated Press)

Munsan, Korea, July 16 (AP)—Cease-fire negotiators reported they made "some progress" in two 55-minute sessions today toward organizing an agenda for their Korean armistice talks.

Their next meeting was scheduled for 11 a. m. Tuesday (8 p. m. Monday, E.S.T.) in war-shattered Kaesong.

After Monday's sessions United Nations negotiators announced: "The Communists have fulfilled their agreement with respect to the neutrality of the conference site in that no armed personnel were observed."

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief UN delegate, commented during the noon recess "it is much better now that we are not surrounded by guards."

Newsmen on the spot said both sides appeared to be in harmony at the end of Monday's session.

Tuesday's meeting was scheduled for 11 a. m.—one hour later than usual—at the request of the Communists. No reason was given for the change in time.

Joy took the entire 55 minute Monday morning session to present further arguments in favor of the agenda proposed by the allied delegation.

They took a two-hour recess at the Reds' request.

Then in the afternoon, cigarette-smoking Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red delegation, used another 55 minutes to present his views.

They talked only about agenda items. An allied announcement said:

"The United Nations command delegation reports that some progress was made to the formation of a mutual agreed upon agenda."

A press dispatch from the truce city said the five North Korean and Chinese generals were scowling as they left the morning meeting.

Smile and Pose

But when the afternoon talks ended at 1:55 p. m. (10:55 p. m. Sunday, E.S.T.) they seemed amiable. The five Red generals smiled and posed for UN photographers.

The cameramen were with the second party of 20 allied press representatives to go to Kaesong under revised negotiating conditions prescribed by the UN commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

The photographers were waiting outside the residence where armistice talks are held. The Communist generals readily accepted the photographers' invitation to pose in a patio on the American side of the building, in marked contrast with the manner in which they had rushed out from the morning meeting.

At the end of the morning session a Red orderly dashed from the building and called for jeeps. The North Korean and Chinese delegates walked briskly from the building and climbed into their Russian-made jeeps.

Reporters said they seemed to be scowling.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red delegate, seemed disturbed.

The allied delegation appeared calm.

The whole city had taken on a neutral tone as the result of Red acceptance of UN demands. Details were worked out Sunday, when conferences resumed after a three-day break.

The other speaker stressed the need for a world-wide respect of the rights of man, as opposed to the condition under which an inner circle of dictators can impose its direction upon millions of persons.

New Officers Named

The convention, which closed Saturday, was attended by approximately 50 delegates from the state. During the business session Saturday morning, Erwin P. Baker of Niagara Falls was re-elected department commander for his third term. E. Slayton of Albany was elected senior vice commander; Henry Borowski, Buffalo, junior vice commander; James Cody, Niagara Falls, quartermaster; Arthur O. Lipinski, Yonkers; judge advocate; Clement Romansky, Buffalo, chaplain; J. Jacowski, Syracuse, and William Bell, Yonkers, trustees.

Eren, who outlined the courageous fight of Turkey against Communist domination, stressed its strategic importance, noting that from its location three continents—Asia, Africa and Europe, are within bombing range.

Eren called for "no piece-meal surrender" to communism.

The other speaker was a medical doctor, who asked that his real name not be put in print for fear of retaliation against family or friends. A prominent physician who held high governmental positions in his country when it was a democracy, he was forced to flee when that country came under Communist domination. He chose to be identified by the fictitious name, Roman Munte, in any printed matter.

Munte, after developing the theme of changing world conditions, made several recommendations. He stressed that the United States is the "only real force" in the world capable of resisting Communist totalitarianism. Therefore, he said, the survival of the U. S. is not only an American problem, but a world problem as well.

"Efficient policies should be established in order to assure the survival of the U.S.A. and implicitly the world," he said.

Need True Association

"It is hypocrisy to speak about any association of free and democratic countries, with a clear knowledge of the fact that in some associated country a handful of dictators are substitute for the will of the people. . . . There is an urgent need for a true association of all nations of the world. Today governments and not peoples are represented in the United Nations. This is the reason for the inefficiency of the wonderful concept of the United Nations," he said.

Finally, commenting on the theory of American dollars supporting the world, he said, "Gifts do not make friends." Humans everywhere do not want and do not need food or money from you except in time of great distress," he said.

More Casualties

Washington, July 15 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 64 more casualties in Korea. A new list (No. 355) reported 10 killed, 18 wounded, 21 missing in action, one prisoner of war and 14 injured in battle zone accidents.

Hungary Told to Withdraw Two of Diplomats by U.S.

Washington, July 16 (AP)—In a new eye-for-an-eye move against a Soviet satellite, the United States has ordered Hungary to withdraw two of its diplomats, including the acting chief of the legation here.

A little over a week ago, Communist Hungary ordered out Albert W. Sherer, Jr., second secretary of the American legation at Budapest, and Miss Ruth Tryon, head of the U. S. Information Services there.

In evident retaliation, this government yesterday handed formal notice to Hungary to withdraw Lajos Nagy, second secretary and charge d'affaires, and Peter Varkonyi, attache.

In both instances, the method was the same—a declaration that each of the diplomats was "persona non grata," or unwelcome. Under long diplomatic tradition, that leaves the home country no alternative but to withdraw the person involved.

The State Department gave no details on why the two Hungarians are no longer welcome here, but a spokesman suggested that a reporter wouldn't miss badly if he drew his own conclusions about retaliation.

In general, the U. S. for more than a year has been following such a policy of retaliation in its relations with the Iron Curtain countries.

In some instances, the policy can't be followed too strictly. Iron Curtain countries generally have their staffs here down to skeleton size, and if Washington wants to maintain any sort of relations it cannot order everybody home. The State Department says, for example, that the Hungarian legation is down to a staff of four.

It may not be cut further if Hungary proposes a successor to Varkonyi who is acceptable to the U. S..

Nagy is to be replaced by Dr. Emil Weil, a new minister to whose assignment this country has assented. Weil will succeed Imbre Horvath, whose return to Hungary put Nagy in temporary charge. His expulsion becomes effective with Weil's arrival, expected shortly.

Hungary's action declaring Sherer and Miss Tryon unwelcome came after the U. S. rejected its request to bring them home. Prosecution witnesses had attempted to implicate both in the trial of Catholic Archbishop Groesz, convicted of working against the Red regime in Hungary.

Some Progress Reported Today Toward Organizing an Agenda In Korean Armistice Discussion

Martial Law Ordered Following Riots in Tehran Against Harriman

Report Varies

Between Four and 16 Killed, 150 Hurt in Outbreaks

Tehran, Iran, July 16 (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh proclaimed martial law in Tehran today and ordered a big roundup of Communists following rioting in which between four and 16 persons were killed and more than 150 injured.

Police arrested more than 200 Leftists following last night's rioting, which started with a Communist demonstration protesting the arrival of President Truman's representative, W. Averell Harriman, for talks with Mossadegh on the oil nationalization crisis.

Reports varied on the number of casualties in last night's fighting between the Reds and Mossadegh's National Fronters. An official police communique said one policeman and three civilians were killed. Earlier, however, the government radio reported two policemen killed, and a high police source said 14 civilians were dead.

Plan 'Martyr Funerals'

Several bodies of members of the underground Communist Tudeh Party were reported carried away from the riot scene last night for Communist-style "martyr funerals."

The police communique said 59 policemen were injured seriously enough to be hospitalized, while 153 others suffered less serious hurts. It said six civilians were critically injured, 55 others hospitalized and "many others" released after treatment for minor injuries.

Harriman today laid a wreath on the tomb of the present Shah's father, the late Shah Reza Pahlevi, then went to the premier's home for the first meeting with Mossadegh.

Misses Violence

The U. S. envoy missed last night's violence. He and his wife were staying at a palace 12 miles up in the mountains.

The riot in Parliament square at dusk last night, which was broken up by police rifle fire and army tanks, gave violent impetus to the tension between the Communist Tudeh and Mossadegh's Nationalists which has existed since the nationalization law was passed in May.

The Mossadegh government, while standing firm on its program to get the AIOC out of Iran, is worried about Tudeh efforts to use the oil nationalization issue to spread Communist influence and disorder.

Today's crackdown on the Tudeh is the sharpest since the attempt to assassinate the Shah in 1949. Since then the Tudeh party has been outlawed but has continued to flourish under such front organizations as the "Partisans of Peace" and the "Society to Fight the Imperialist Oil Companies.".

Groups Are Raided

Police raided the headquarters of both organizations in the early hours this morning and arrested several leaders. Left Wing papers also were suppressed by the police today and did not publish.

One of the chief reasons for the proclamation of martial law—which bans gatherings of more than three persons—was to prevent further demonstrations in connection with the funerals of the riot dead. Communists in the past here have spirited the bodies of any riot victims away and held them for big mass funerals.

President Truman's personal envoy told reporters on his arrival yesterday he is confident friendly talks can settle the dispute over Iran's nationalization of the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's billion-dollar properties.

Has Full Authority

Harriman said he had no specific proposals for a settlement, but emphasized he had full presidential authority to discuss all aspects of the nationalization dispute plus United States economic aid for Iran.

Harriman said he would stay in Tehran "as long as I can be useful" and that he would stop off in London on the way home for talks with the British government.

Four Jersey Persons Hurt In Creek Bridge Accident

Work Is Resumed On Thruway Route

Solution of Problems at Crossing Point Now Underway

State engineers have resumed work on the solution of interchange and crossing problems at the point where the New York State Thruway is mapped to cross Routes 28 and 209, an engineer said today.

Much study has been required on the phase of the super highway which will extend south of the city from the point where the contract ends for the strip immediately north of the city.

The problems involve crossings of the Esopus creek, the O. & W., and Catskill Mountain Branch of the New York Central railroad, the Sawkill road and the two main highways plus the Lucas avenue turnpike.

The Thruway is tentatively scheduled to cross Route 28 about a quarter of a mile west of the intersection of the Sawkill road. It will cross Route 209 somewhere near the Wiltwyck Golf course. No calls for contract on the strip south of the city are on schedule, a state official said.

It was also announced today that a first major phase of the resurfacing of Route 212 at Woodstock was scheduled to start today. Work on the curbing has been started. The route through the village will be resurfaced for about one and a third miles. The Hudson River Construction Co., of Albany is the contractor.

Three Parked Vehicles Struck by Truck; Traffic Held Up 40 Minutes

Four people were injured in a four-car accident Saturday afternoon on the Rondout Creek bridge and traffic was tied up for 40 minutes while officers from the sheriff's office and city police cleared the bridge. During that time traffic was tied up as far south as Highland.

All four vehicles were traveling north at the time and the accident happened when three of the vehicles stopped at the Kingston end of the bridge for the traffic light. A truck coming north failed to stop and crashed into the parked cars.

All of the injured were in the car of James B. Boyle, 28, of 1051 Dewey Place, Elizabeth, N. J. They were en route to East Durham for vacation. After being treated at the Kingston Hospital by Dr. Maroon, they were able to proceed to their destination after summoning friends at East Durham to come to Kingston for them.

No Arrest Made

Injured were Rose Boyle, 21, who suffered cuts about the body, Ann Campbell, 21, slight body cuts, James B. Boyle, 28, cut on the left arm and Mrs. Ann Carr, 21, cuts about the legs.

There was no arrest.

The accident happened about 1 p. m. when the cars of Frank M. Snyder, 68, of R.D. 3, Newburgh, a truck operated by Gilbert Brewer, 32, of Munice, Ind., owned by James Buffin of Munice, Ind., and a car of James Boyle of Elizabeth, N. J., stopped for the traffic light. The Boyle car was completely wrecked. Mrs. Snyder, who accompanied her husband, was not injured.

Meeting Scheduled Tomorrow

Reds Fufill Agreement on Neutrality of Conference Site, UN Says

Red Generals Pose

Newsmen on the Spot Say Both Sides Are in Harmony

(By The Associated Press)

Munsan, Korea, July 16 (AP)—Cease-fire negotiators reported they made "some progress" in two 55-minute sessions today toward organizing an agenda for their Korean armistice talks.

Their next meeting was scheduled for 11 a. m. Tuesday (8 p. m. Monday, E.S.T.) in war-shattered Kaesong.

After Monday's sessions United Nations negotiators announced:

"The Communists have fulfilled their agreement with respect to the neutrality of the conference site in that no armed personnel were observed."

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief UN delegate, commented during the noon recess "it is much better now that we are not surrounded by guards."

Newsmen on the spot said both sides appeared to be in harmony at the end of Monday's session.

Tuesday's meeting was scheduled for 11 a. m.—one hour later than usual—at the request of the Communists. No reason was given for the change in time.

Joy took the entire 55 minute Monday morning session to present further arguments in favor of the agenda proposed by the allied delegation.

They took a two-hour recess at the Reds' request.

Then in the afternoon, cigarette-smoking Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red delegation, used another 55 minutes to present his views.

They talked only about agenda items. An allied announcement said:

"The United Nations command delegation reports that some progress was made to the formation of a mutual agreed upon agenda."

A press dispatch from the truce city said the five North Korean and Chinese generals were scowling as they left the morning meeting.

Smile and Pose

But when the afternoon talks ended at 1:55 p. m. (10:55 p. m. Sunday, E.S.T.) they seemed amiable. The five Red generals smiled and posed for UN photographers.

The cameramen were with the second party of 20 allied press representatives to go to Kaesong under revised negotiating conditions prescribed by the UN commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

The photographers were waiting outside the residence where armistice talks are held. The Communist generals readily accepted the photographers' invitation to pose in a patio on the American side of the building, in marked contrast with the manner in which they had rushed out from the morning meeting.

At the end of the morning session a Red orderly dashed from the building and called for jeeps. The North Korean and Chinese delegates walked briskly from the building and climbed into their Russian-made jeeps.

Reporters said they seemed to be scowling.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red delegate, seemed disturbed.

The allied delegation appeared calm.

The whole city had taken on a neutral tone as the result of Red acceptance of UN demands. Details were worked out Sunday, when conferences resumed after a three-day break.

Mayor's Committee Believes 90,000 in New York Use Dope

New York, July 16 (AP) — The mayor's committee on dope addiction estimated today that between 45,000 and 90,000 persons in New York city are using illicit dope.

The committee said narcotics addiction, especially among teenagers, is increasing in the city.

The report called for more severe penalties for dope sellers, and for wholesale revisions of federal and state penal statutes relating to sale.

The New York state Legislature recently enacted more stringent penalties.

The committee, appointed by Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri last Dec. 11, made the recommendations in a 75-page report on "study on drug addiction among teen-agers."

The committee was under direction of Thomas F. Murphy, former city police commissioner and newly-appointed federal judge.

As one means of combatting dope addiction, the report proposed that—"consistent with civil liberty"—all known narcotics addicts be subjected to "compulsory treatment without stigma of criminality, much as is done with insane persons."

The committee estimated there are up to 3,000 dope sellers in the city. This was based on the number of arrests.

The report said "drastic punishment, such as death or life imprisonment" for narcotic sellers "is not advisable because it would seriously impair the certainty of punishment of offenders."

Illicit supplies of narcotics, the report said, can "most strategically and economically be reduced by increased activity by the federal government along two lines: Effective international agreements, the enforcement of which abroad will be assured by appropriate action of the State Department; and concentration of internal effort by the Federal Narcotics Bureau against the importation and interstate distribution rather than intra-state sale of narcotic drugs."

By DANIEL J. O'CONNOR

BACHELOR HALL

The house is such a busy place
When eager youngsters romp and race
And always there's an hour of fun
That waits for me . . . when day is done.

How strange it seems at break of dawn
When silence tells me they are gone . . .
No kettle sings to start the day
And laughter fails . . . when they're away.
The corners bright must borrow gloom
For want of just a daily broom
And dusty tables, floors and chairs
To say the least . . . are sad affairs.

The goldfish sulk inside their bowl
For now it's just a swimming hole
And thirsty plants must surely yearn
For mother's safe and quick return.
A house that echoes every sound
Can scarcely be a home, I've found
And smiles must wait from now 'til then
When voices shout . . . "We're home again!"

San Diego, Calif., July 16 (AP)—A former director of naval intelligence, Rear Adm. Thomas B. Inglis, announced today he had requested retirement. Financial and Commercial

New York, July 16 (AP)—There was no concerted direction in the stock market today, and the net result was a balanced mixture of gains and losses.

Market leaders moved higher and lower to outside limits ending in the $1-$2 range. There were of course some exceptions.

Because of the diverse movement of individual issues, it was a bit difficult to classify major divisions, but for the most part they fell into these categories:

Higher — Chemicals, aircrafts, building materials.

Lower — Oils, motors, steels, farm implements.

Mixed — Rubbers, merchandising, distillers, radio-television, utilities, copper mining, railroads, air lines, motion pictures.

The start today was quiet with changes limited mostly to 25 cents. The market broadened out later, but there was no change in the restrained atmosphere of trading.

Requests Retirement

San Diego, Calif., July 16 (AP)—A former director of naval intelligence, Rear Adm. Thomas B. Inglis, announced today he had requested retirement. Financial and Commercial

New York, July 16 (AP)—There was no concerted direction in the stock market today, and the net result was a balanced mixture of gains and losses.

Market leaders moved higher and lower to outside limits ending in the $1-$2 range. There were of course some exceptions.

Because of the diverse movement of individual issues, it was a bit difficult to classify major divisions, but for the most part they fell into these categories:

Higher — Chemicals, aircrafts, building materials.

Lower — Oils, motors, steels, farm implements.

The start today was quiet with changes limited mostly to 25 cents. The market broadened out later, but there was no change in the restrained atmosphere of trading.

Some chemicals provided fireworks with big jumps in price. American Cyanamid was up as much as 4 with trading fairly active. Rohm & Haas shot up 8% at one time on just a few sales. Both issues are prominently mentioned in brokerage circles as candidates for splits of stock dividends

The house is such a busy place
When eager youngsters romp and race
And always there's an hour of fun
That waits for me . . . when day is done.

How strange it seems at break of dawn
When silence tells me they are gone . . .
No kettle sings to start the day
And laughter fails . . . when they're away.
The corners bright must borrow gloom
For want of just a daily broom
And dusty tables, floors and chairs
To say the least . . . are sad affairs.

The goldfish sulk inside their bowl
For now it's just a swimming hole
And thirsty plants must surely yearn
For mother's safe and quick return.
A house that echoes every sound
Can scarcely be a home, I've found
And smiles must wait from now 'til then
When voices shout . . . "We're home again!"

Surgeons Remove Knife From Head

New York, July 16 (AP) — A team of four surgeons removed a six-inch knife blade from a man's head in a difficult operation that lasted seven and a half hours yesterday.

The patient, Joseph Alexander, 33, a Negro shipping clerk, was reported holding his own today at the Jewish Hospital of Brooklyn.

The knife blade had been driven through the Brooklyn man's head behind the eyes in a street stabbing.

A hospital spokesman said the surgeons, headed by Dr. Aaron J. Berman, removed "a good part" of the brain in getting out the knife blade.

The extent of permanent damage caused by removal of the brain tissue could not be determined immediately, the spokesman said.

The blade entered Alexander's head at the right temple, pierced the skull and almost broke the skin above his left ear. The surgeons used an electric instrument which records brain waves during the operation.

Alexander was stabbed early yesterday outside the home of friends whom he and his wife had been visiting in Rockaway Beach, Queens. Police said Alexander became involved in a street fight with a man who stabbed him with a hunting knife. A Negro parole violator was sought as the assailant.

TRIBUTE TO PARIS

The city of Paris is celebrating its two thousandth anniversary and the world joins in the celebration. No city in Europe has succeeded in capturing the popular imagination to the extent that Paris has. It is regarded as the glamor capital of the world, a place of culture and art, entertainment and fashion.

But this city celebrating its two thousand years is more than its revered cathedrals, its honored schools and its museums which house art treasures. These are a manifestation of the spirit of some of the people who have lived there and have helped to shape the way it has grown. The real glory of Paris is the indomitable spirit of the men and women who have fought and died in its streets for "liberty, equality and fraternity."

Americans have a special affection for Paris and indeed for all of France. When our fledgling nation struck out for freedom from England in 1776, France was one of the first to encourage and aid. Lafayette is a hero of greater stature in this country than he is in his own. Two generations of American soldiers have marched in friendship through the streets of Paris and have brought home memories of the magic city.

The actual date of the city's founding is lost in history. It is appropriate, however, that the observance should be held at this time when men everywhere are talking of the possibility of a war that might destroy civilization and reduce the great cities of the world to ashes. To pay tribute to a city that has withstood two thousand years of war and fighting, has known destruction and been rebuilt, has known invasion and an ultimate victory, may be a source of inspiration and hope.

SELF-FIXING WINDOW

Something new in the way of shatterproof glass has been announced. Intended for such application as the windows of houses and buildings, its unique feature is that when it is broken the pieces are not only tied down by a flexible center layer as in the case of ordinary safety glass, but they can be pushed back into place and held together by adhesive tape or, the maker suggests, even a wad of chewing gum. It is, in short, virtually a self-fixing window pane.

The manufacturer had in mind something for the Age of Bombs, with the idea that the new glass would enable quick repairs over a large area of windows shattered by a bomb explosion. We hope it never becomes necessary to make such glass standard household equipment for that reason. But this invention could be a great boon for householders imperiled by youngsters with baseballs and adults with a yen to hit golf balls in the back yard. The boy who had broken a window, instead of fleeing in panic to gain time to figure out what to do about it, could rush up to the owner of the window and offer a wad of gum with which to make emergency repair.

It sounds almost too good to be true. It would, indeed, have a definite drawback for the household handy man. After he had achieved a semi-permanent repair job by replacing the wad of gum with tape, it might become very hard to persuade him that this bit of art work should be replaced with a new pane of glass.

Four-fifths of the dresses women buy cost under twenty-five dollars, we are told. That remaining fifth is quite a budget-bender.

REAL SECURITY

A real estate advertisement in a popular magazine is headed by the phrase, "Safely away from any bomb target area." This psychological approach to prospective buyers is an appeal to their desire for security. Fortunately such appeals have not moved any great number of people to seek safety by deserting the cities.

We can achieve real security by working vigorously for peace, by keeping our strength great enough to stop any enemy from damaging our homes, by our faith and by courage constant enough to know that we will rebuild if we must.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

U.N. AND THE PRESS

The United Nations gradually, through its various committees, is moving into world government, and the country that it uses as its testing ground is the United States. Few Americans are conscious of this activity of the United Nations and many of those who know what is being done by the various committees refuse to believe that any of it can have any permanent effect on American institutions.

Yet under the charter of the United Nations, which in the American political system is a treaty signed by the President and ratified by the Senate, decisions of the United Nations have already been applied to cases in our courts with the full weight of the law.

One of the committees of the United Nations which has concerned itself with questions tremendously important to the United States is the special committee on the draft convention on freedom of information. As the work of this committee is studied, it is clear that its interest is not in freedom of information but in the right of governments to limit and suppress information and for the harassment of reporters. This is done under the Aesopian word, "responsibility."

Carroll Binder, of the Minneapolis "Tribune," the American representative on this committee, has been waging a losing fight trying to educate some of the Europeans about freedom of the press, as practiced in the United States, where the imperfections of man are recognized and often assumed to be natural and therefore unpunishable.

In those other countries, the theory is that the "great mind" alone can determine what the people ought to know and that competent reporters, who check their data, are spies or irresponsible. Carroll Binder describes their attitude:

"These governments are engaged in a terrifying experiment to condition the minds of hundreds of millions of persons in an attempt to make them respond automatically to the commands of their rulers. In their hands information has been transformed from a means of enlightenment and understanding into a political weapon taking any form or shape required by the situation. It has become a knife to assassinate reputations, a drug to dull the senses, or a poison to instill suspicion and fear.

"Of course, when they have sought support for their view in the United Nations, they have been careful to present it in the most disarming disguise. They have maintained that to promote friendly international relations it is first necessary to define what information is and then to suppress the dissemination of anything which does not conform to the definition. . . ."

What these countries seek to do in the United States is to make the newspapers and the journalists "responsible." They do not recognize that the laws of libel are sufficient; they demand that, by administrative procedure, a government shall be enabled to take action against a newspaper or a reporter who is not "responsible." By responsibility, they mean that no reporter should write nor should a newspaper print anything that annoys the politicians of any country. Binder says:

". . . This convention was never, as I understand it, intended to deal primarily or even directly with the work of journalists. I have understood its intent to be the promotion and protection of everyone's right to freedom of information. To distort it into a punitive measure directed at journalists would certainly be a mockery of everything the United Nations has attempted to do in this field. We must realize that undesirable checks placed on journalists would apply equally to artists and teachers, to lawyers and politicians—and in the last analysis to people like ourselves drawn from every walk of life. Even if the grievances against some journalists and newspapers are assumed to be real, this is certainly too high a price to pay to settle a few scores!"

The State Department has put up a good fight against the Europeans who seek to suppress freedom of the press throughout the world by means of the United Nations. The American position is:

"We are convinced that the fundamental principles of freedom of information can not be the subject of compromise. . . ."

The United Nations is, however, a complex and enormous organization in which compromises must be found among 60 nations. Things happen there and the public finds itself faced by a condition from which there is no immediate withdrawal.

It is therefore essential that the American position be strengthened to say not that "freedom of information can not be the subject of compromise," but we should say that the freedoms of the American people are not subject to discussion.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

RHEUMATIC HEART DISEASE

Dr. Osler, the greatest physician of modern times, once stated that more illnesses started in the throat and nose than in any other part of the body. It is for this reason that general physicians and throat specialists try to save the lining of nose and throat and also try to save the tonsils, as the lining of the nose kills harmful organisms before they enter the bronchial tubes and lungs, and the tonsils filter out from the blood harmful organisms and the products of harmful organisms. It is only when the tonsils become infected themselves and are unable to filter out harmful organisms and wastes from these organisms that they are removed.

It has been well said that rheumatic fever is childhood's greatest enemy. Even one attack of tonsillitis may cause an attack of rheumatic fever two or three weeks after the tonsils are normal again. Rheumatic fever is the forerunner of heart disease.

In Michigan State Medical Journal, Dr. H. McCulloch states that every attack of rheumatic fever produces some harmful change or alteration in the structure of the heart.

Generally, any change or alteration in the structure of the heart caused by rheumatic fever which inflames the lining of the heart, can be easily detected by the physician but even where the usual signs of change cannot be detected, a change in structure should be suspected. Usually there is enlargement of the heart and alteration in the heart sounds. Together with the enlargement and changes in heart sounds, there may be thrills and murmurs due to changes in the caliber of the blood vessels in the heart.

"The use of X-rays, electrocardiograms, and electrophonocardiograms made under standard conditions, reveal information that is invaluable and cannot be obtained otherwise," writes Dr. McCulloch.

First attacks of rheumatic fever occur most frequently between the ages of five and nine years. With each attack, there is an increase in damage done to the heart. Chronic heart disease appears most frequently in the ten to 14 age group. The problem of treating rheumatic fever patients should rest in the hands of the family physician, the general practitioner or children's specialist, although the heart specialist may be consulted to make sure of the diagnosis.

When we think that a simple sore throat or an attack of tonsillitis can cause rheumatic fever followed by heart disease, we can understand the need for careful supervision, good nursing and absolute rest in any such cases.

Yeah, but Can They Make It Stick?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — American truce negotiators in Korea have noted with interest that the Chinese Communists are using American jeeps. The American public has also wondered not only how the Communists were able to obtain American equipment, but why the Nationalist government was driven out of China.

The sub-rosa operations of the Chiang Kai-Shek family may be one of the answers. Another of their operations has just come to light — a move by a Chiang brother-in-law, with other wealthy Chinese to corner the soybean market at the expense of the American public.

The brother-in-law is T. L. Soong, brother of Foreign Minister T. V. Soong, who formerly handled much of the three and a half billion dollars worth of supplies which the United States sent to China during the war. The soybean pool netted a profit of $30,000,000 and shot up the cost to the American consumer $1 a bushel.

One of the strange things about the soybean manipulation was that its operators knew exactly the right time to buy up the world's soybean supply—a few weeks before the Communists invaded Korea.

Recently this column told how Eugene Soong, son of T. L. Soong, together with L. K. Kung, son of Dr. H. H. Kung, another brother-in-law, sold a huge quantity of precious tin to the Chinese Communists. As a result Secretary of Commerce Sawyer has now barred this group together with three law partners of ex-Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, from getting export licenses to trade with any country for three years.

It was the father of Eugene Soong, T. L. Soong, who bought up half a million bushels of soybeans before the Korean war in May, 1950.

Soybeans are used for cattle and human food, in manufacturing plastics and paints, and are essential for war production. And 56 Chinese bought up the huge quantity of 6,986,000 bushels on the Chicago Board of Trade at $2.34 a bushel.

Shortly thereafter the price began to climb. It soared and soared. Finally, five days after the Communists invaded Korea, the price hit $3.45-½ a bushel, and the group sold out.

T. L. Soong is the same man in charge of supplies sent over the Burma road at a time when a series of warehouse fires and "sabotage" caused the disappearance of large quantities of war material.

Shortly thereafter, Soong left for the United States on a diplomatic passport, and was moved into an even more important spot in Washington — chief procurement officer of Chinese war supplies.

Soong is still here. But, instead of handling war supplies, he is now speculating in soybeans at the expense of the American public.

Operations like this may be one reason why the disillusioned Chinese people threw out the Soongkung dynasty and accepted communism as a lesser evil.

Oil and Gold

Ex-Sen. Sheridan Downey of California recently met radio correspondent Rudy Block in a capitol corridor. Downey, who rose to political fame on an old-age pension scheme known as "Ham and Eggs," is now lobbying at $3,000 a month for Tidelands Oil.

"Well, Senator," said Block, as they shook hands. "I see it's from ham and eggs to oil and gold."

GOP Targets for '52

A frank outline of GOP campaign strategy for 1952 was presented to key Republican senators' assistants by Ab Hermann, the energetic national committee executive director, in a private meeting the other night.

The tall, banjo-eyed Hermann, onetime big-league ballplayer, confided: "We won Senate seats last year wherever we took our gloves off. There were only two states we should have taken and didn't, and that was because our nominees refused to punch hard—Missouri and Connecticut.

"Why," complained Herman, "we had to bootleg speakers like McCarthy into Connecticut."

The "prime targets" in 1950, he said, were Scott Lucas in Illinois; Francis Myers in Pennsylvania; Elbert Thomas of Utah, and Millard Tydings of Maryland.

Turning to Frank Smith, assistant to Sen. John M. Butler, who defeated Tydings, Hermann continued: "We did a beautiful job in Maryland and Utah, Frank. I don't see why the Democrats yelled so much amout the composite picture in your campaign, when, by comparison with the anti-Thomas newspaper in Utah, your publicity was like a country gentleman's."

He referred to the fact that in Utah, a supposed "Congressional Record" with statements attacking Thomas as a pro-Communist was circulated to all mailboxes in the last hours of the campaign—so late that Thomas had no opportunity to reply.

"We all know Senator Thomas was not a Communist," Hermann explained, "but these tactics were necessary to balance the Pseudo-Liberal newspapers which were for him."

Pointing to Dick Cardall, administrative aide to Sen. Arthur Watkins of Utah, Hermann continued: "There's the fellow who gets a lot of credit for the victory. Senator Bennett (the Republican who beat Thomas) is very much indebted to him."

The 1952 target areas, Herman indicated, were to retain all Republican seats in the New England and Atlantic states, and pick up new senators in Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming.

"On the other hand," he said, pointing to a map behind him," "we could lose four or five senators. Quite frankly, even if there is a sweeping Republican victory for president, we still may not control the Senate."

Today in Washington

With Taft in Front, Truman Mentions 'Ike' to Confuse Republicans on Nomination

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 16—President Truman may or may not be as adept as his predecessor in keeping folks guessing about his political intentions in advance of a national convention but certainly he has shown himself lately quite adroit in throwing confusion into the camp of his opponents.

For there are a lot of political tongues wagging today as a result of Mr. Truman's willingness to discuss whether General Eisenhower is or is not available as a Presidential nominee in 1952. Having banned questions as to his own possible candidacy, Mr. Truman must have a very good reason for his surprising comment to the press that he regarded the Eisenhower letter of January 22, 1948, as applying only to that year.

Actually there is nothing in the letter of disclaimer which puts a time limit or any other reservation on the general's refusal to accept a nomination for the presidency if tendered him. The circumstances haven't changed a bit. He is still being mentioned for nomination by the Republicans or the Democrats.

Mr. Truman has taken advantage of this unprecedented background to volunteer a comment he really didn't have to make. The only reason the political minded here think could have promoted such a move was to throw a monkey wrench into the Republican party. For everyone knows that at the moment Senator Taft of Ohio is out in front. He has the backing of the organized groups of Republicans in many states. Nobody else is actively lining up many delegations. It is true that Governor Dewey and former Governor Stassen and several other prominent Republicans have come out in favor of General Eisenhower but it is also true that the General has never publicly said whether he is a Republican or Democrat.

The Republican Convention of 1952 takes place ahead of the Democratic Convention. The drive for Eisenhower will collide head on there with the Taft boom. Those persons on the Taft side who have been saying the 1948 letter by the General disqualifies him now find President Truman saying he doesn't think so. If anything, this adds a bit of momentum to the movement behind Eisenhower on the Democratic side and makes it possible for the Democrats to name him if the Republicans don't. Conceivably Mr. Truman may be thinking that his own party may draft Eisenhower and if they do it is important to begin to remove the 1948 letter as an obstacle. Or is he trying to make sure the Republicans name Eisenhower so that the issue can turn on military versus civilian power—something that came up recently in the MacArthur controversy?

But what does the letter itself say? Here are the pertinent passages in General Eisenhower's letter:

"It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to the civil power will be best sustained when lifelong professional soldiers, in the absence of some obvious and overriding reason, abstain from seeking high political office . . .

"Politics is a profession, a serious, complicated and, in its true sense, a noble one. In the American scene, I see no dearth of men fitted by training, talent, and integrity for national leadership. On the other hand, nothing in the international or domestic situation especially qualifies for the most important office in the world a man whose adult years have been spent in the country's military forces. At least that is true in my case."

Some day in the not far distant future General MacArthur will be concurring publicly as he has been doing privately to callers in that 1948 observation of General Eisenhower. Maybe President Truman thinks so too, but that wouldn't prevent him from throwing General Eisenhower's hat in the race if only to embarrass Senator Taft. Anyway, the final words of General Eisenhower's letter to Leonard Finder, publisher of the Union Leader of Manchester, New Hampshire, were without reservation of any kind as the general wrote: "I know you will not object to my making this letter public to inform all interested persons that I could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me."

There wasn't anything in the letter of 1948 which makes the above reasoning applicable only to that year and not to the year 1952. Men have been nominated for the vice presidency and have declined to accept. General Eisenhower may be the first to do the same thing if a presidential nomination is offered by a convention — unless, of course, America is in the middle of a world war and the people need and want a military man to be their commander-in-chief.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, July 15—My opinion may seem unduly pessimistic, but I say the people of the United States have lost their constitutional government to the overriding institution of unionism and I undertake to prove that they have. This fact is the worst because not one person in a hundred thousand, or make it a million, realizes that it is a fact. It is more worse (CQ) because my belief and my proof can be laughed out of the minds of people who should be convinced and alarmed.

Unionism was advertised as a project to establish for the individual worker a power to deal collectively with a big adversary on the owner's side of the table. A Communist song, put out during the treasonous insurrections, which gave rise to the CIO, said "the boss won't listen when one guy squawks but he's gotta listen when the union talks—." That was the vulgar gist of unionism.

There was no knowing concession by the people of the United States nor by any unit of our government from the precinct up to Washington that a union had any rights which were not explicity awarded to any other person or group. It had no express or implied right to threaten anyone with death or physical injury; no right to kill or hurt people or destroy or damage property; no right to interfere with the mails or interstate commerce or to pour money into elections for the purpose of defeating candidates and issues inimical to the lawless excesses of unionism.

But, because the union formerly represented a type of citizen who had been getting a raw deal from some employers, and not only from the big ones, public sentiment made the serious mistake of condoning riots and other violence. Public opinion did not object to the open solicitation of union support by politicians who made no bones about promising to let unions violate the laws if they were elected. So unions presently came to enjoy a privilege of lawless misbehavior which is now confirmed by court decisions and legislation as a right. The Constitution has not been changed but it has been overridden.

When you read in the New York Times, as you often will, that "labor" takes a certain stand on some issue, you are the victim of a willful deception and imposition by a paper which pretends to be truthful and to deserve your confidence. Nobody knows better than the Times that the Washington force which it refers to as "labor" is not "labor" but a small group of presumptuous individuals in Washington who exercise a power befitting public officers but have no credentials from the public. They do not have even credentials from the voluntary members, who may be a minorty, of their own unions. They just say they were elected but they don't have to prove it. And the total membership of all their unions together is, roughly, no more than one-sixth or one-fifth of "labor." So, for ulterior but determined reasons, the Times constantly puts over on its trusting clientele a subtle misrepresentation in favor of a violent, lawless element.

The Times is not alone in this deception. It is a common error or crime of slipshod or dishonest journalism. But the Times is the more guilty because it can not possibly claim to be careless or uninformed. It knows that the name "labor" is full of amiable or noble meaning. It knows that, at most, the element which the union bosses claim to represent is only a small and debatable proportion of "labor," and is used to commit outrageous crimes against lawful government and the rights of the citizens. Such an element cannot be held to be amiable or noble. Conscientious journalism has no excuse to misrepresent its character in this way.

The subject is very large but it is not tangled as the enemies of the Constitution would have us believe it is. It is plain the national government has officially helped criminals to compel citizens to join unions against their will and to suffer extortion under penalty of suspension, expulsion and fines.

No city in Europe has succeeded in capturing the popular imagination to the extent that Paris has. It is regarded as the glamor capital of the world, a place of culture and art, entertainment and fashion.

But this city celebrating its two thousand years is more than its revered cathedrals, its honored schools and its museums which house art treasures. These are a manifestation of the spirit of some of the people who have lived there and have helped to shape the way it has grown. The real glory of Paris is the indomitable spirit of the men and women who have fought and died in its streets for "liberty, equality and fraternity."

Americans have a special affection for Paris and indeed for all of France. When our fledgling nation struck out for freedom from England in 1776, France was one of the first to encourage and aid. Lafayette is a hero of greater stature in this country than he is in his own. Two generations of American soldiers have marched in friendship through the streets of Paris and have brought home memories of the magic city.

The actual date of the city's founding is lost in history. It is appropriate, however, that the observance should be held at this time when men everywhere are talking of the possibility of a war that might destroy civilization and reduce the great cities of the world to ashes. To pay tribute to a city that has withstood two thousand years of war and fighting, has known destruction and been rebuilt, has known invasion and an ultimate victory, may be a source of inspiration and hope.

SELF-FIXING WINDOW

Something new in the way of shatterproof glass has been announced. Intended for such application as the windows of houses and buildings, its unique feature is that when it is broken the pieces are not only tied down by a flexible center layer as in the case of ordinary safety glass, but they can be pushed back into place and held together by adhesive tape or, the maker suggests, even a wad of chewing gum. It is, in short, virtually a self-fixing window pane.

The manufacturer had in mind something for the Age of Bombs, with the idea that the new glass would enable quick repairs over a large area of windows shattered by a bomb explosion. We hope it never becomes necessary to make such glass standard household equipment for that reason. But this invention could be a great boon for householders imperiled by youngsters with baseballs and adults with a yen to hit golf balls in the back yard. The boy who had broken a window, instead of fleeing in panic to gain time to figure out what to do about it, could rush up to the owner of the window and offer a wad of gum with which to make emergency repair.

It sounds almost too good to be true. It would, indeed, have a definite drawback for the household handy man. After he had achieved a semi-permanent repair job by replacing the wad of gum with tape, it might become very hard to persuade him that this bit of art work should be replaced with a new pane of glass.

Four-fifths of the dresses women buy cost under twenty-five dollars, we are told. That remaining fifth is quite a budget-bender.

REAL SECURITY

A real estate advertisement in a popular magazine is headed by the phrase, "Safely away from any bomb target area." This psychological approach to prospective buyers is an appeal to their desire for security. Fortunately such appeals have not moved any great number of people to seek safety by deserting the cities.

We can achieve real security by working vigorously for peace, by keeping our strength great enough to stop any enemy from damaging our homes, by our faith and by courage constant enough to know that we will rebuild if we must.

'These Days'

U.N. AND THE PRESS

The United Nations gradually, through its various committees, is moving into world government, and the country that it uses as its testing ground is the United States. Few Americans are conscious of this activity of the United Nations and many of those who know what is being done by the various committees refuse to believe that any of it can have any permanent effect on American institutions.

Yet under the charter of the United Nations, which in the American political system is a treaty signed by the President and ratified by the Senate, decisions of the United Nations have already been applied to cases in our courts with the full weight of the law.

One of the committees of the United Nations which has concerned itself with questions tremendously important to the United States is the special committee on the draft convention on freedom of information. As the work of this committee is studied, it is clear that its interest is not in freedom of information but in the right of governments to limit and suppress information and for the harassment of reporters. This is done under the Aesopian word, "responsibility."

Carroll Binder, of the Minneapolis "Tribune," the American representative on this committee, has been waging a losing fight trying to educate some of the Europeans about freedom of the press, as practiced in the United States, where the imperfections of man are recognized and often assumed to be natural and therefore unpunishable.

In those other countries, the theory is that the "great mind" alone can determine what the people ought to know and that competent reporters, who check their data, are spies or irresponsible. Carroll Binder describes their attitude:

"These governments are engaged in a terrifying experiment to condition the minds of hundreds of millions of persons in an attempt to make them respond automatically to the commands of their rulers. In their hands information has been transformed from a means of enlightenment and understanding into a political weapon taking any form or shape required by the situation. It has become a knife to assassinate reputations, a drug to dull the senses, or a poison to instill suspicion and fear.

"Of course, when they have sought support for their view in the United Nations, they have been careful to present it in the most disarming disguise. They have maintained that to promote friendly international relations it is first necessary to define what information is and then to suppress the dissemination of anything which does not conform to the definition. . . ."

What these countries seek to do in the United States is to make the newspapers and the journalists "responsible." They do not recognize that the laws of libel are sufficient; they demand that, by administrative procedure, a government shall be enabled to take action against a newspaper or a reporter who is not "responsible." By responsibility, they mean that no reporter should write nor should a newspaper print anything that annoys the politicians of any country. Binder says:

". . . This convention was never, as I understand it, intended to deal primarily or even directly with the work of journalists. I have understood its intent to be the promotion and protection of everyone's right to freedom of information. To distort it into a punitive measure directed at journalists would certainly be a mockery of everything the United Nations has attempted to do in this field. We must realize that undesirable checks placed on journalists would apply equally to artists and teachers, to lawyers and politicians—and in the last analysis to people like ourselves drawn from every walk of life. Even if the grievances against some journalists and newspapers are assumed to be real, this is certainly too high a price to pay to settle a few scores!"

The State Department has put up a good fight against the Europeans who seek to suppress freedom of the press throughout the world by means of the United Nations. The American position is:

"We are convinced that the fundamental principles of freedom of information can not be the subject of compromise. . . ."

The United Nations is, however, a complex and enormous organization in which compromises must be found among 60 nations. Things happen there and the public finds itself faced by a condition from which there is no immediate withdrawal.

It is therefore essential that the American position be strengthened to say not that "freedom of information can not be the subject of compromise," but we should say that the freedoms of the American people are not subject to discussion.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

RHEUMATIC HEART DISEASE

Dr. Osler, the greatest physician of modern times, once stated that more illnesses started in the throat and nose than in any other part of the body. It is for this reason that general physicians and throat specialists try to save the lining of nose and throat and also try to save the tonsils, as the lining of the nose kills harmful organisms before they enter the bronchial tubes and lungs, and the tonsils filter out from the blood harmful organisms and the products of harmful organisms. It is only when the tonsils become infected themselves and are unable to filter out harmful organisms and wastes from these organisms that they are removed.

It has been well said that rheumatic fever is childhood's greatest enemy. Even one attack of tonsillitis may cause an attack of rheumatic fever two or three weeks after the tonsils are normal again. Rheumatic fever is the forerunner of heart disease.

In Michigan State Medical Journal, Dr. H. McCulloch states that every attack of rheumatic fever produces some harmful change or alteration in the structure of the heart.

Generally, any change or alteration in the structure of the heart caused by rheumatic fever which inflames the lining of the heart, can be easily detected by the physician but even where the usual signs of change cannot be detected, a change in structure should be suspected. Usually there is enlargement of the heart and alteration in the heart sounds. Together with the enlargement and changes in heart sounds, there may be thrills and murmurs due to changes in the caliber of the blood vessels in the heart.

"The use of X-rays, electrocardiograms, and electrophonocardiograms made under standard conditions, reveal information that is invaluable and cannot be obtained otherwise," writes Dr. McCulloch.

First attacks of rheumatic fever occur most frequently between the ages of five and nine years. With each attack, there is an increase in damage done to the heart. Chronic heart disease appears most frequently in the ten to 14 age group. The problem of treating rheumatic fever patients should rest in the hands of the family physician, the general practitioner or children's specialist, although the heart specialist may be consulted to make sure of the diagnosis.

When we think that a simple sore throat or an attack of tonsillitis can cause rheumatic fever followed by heart disease, we can understand the need for careful supervision, good nursing and absolute rest in any such cases.

Yeah, but Can They Make It Stick?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — American truce negotiators in Korea have noted with interest that the Chinese Communists are using American jeeps. The American public has also wondered not only how the Communists were able to obtain American equipment, but why the Nationalist government was driven out of China.

The sub-rosa operations of the Chiang Kai-Shek family may be one of the answers. Another of their operations has just come to light — a move by a Chiang brother-in-law, with other wealthy Chinese to corner the soybean market at the expense of the American public.

The brother-in-law is T. L. Soong, brother of Foreign Minister T. V. Soong, who formerly handled much of the three and a half billion dollars worth of supplies which the United States sent to China during the war. The soybean pool netted a profit of $30,000,000 and shot up the cost to the American consumer $1 a bushel.

One of the strange things about the soybean manipulation was that its operators knew exactly the right time to buy up the world's soybean supply—a few weeks before the Communists invaded Korea.

Recently this column told how Eugene Soong, son of T. L. Soong, together with L. K. Kung, son of Dr. H. H. Kung, another brother-in-law, sold a huge quantity of precious tin to the Chinese Communists. As a result Secretary of Commerce Sawyer has now barred this group together with three law partners of ex-Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, from getting export licenses to trade with any country for three years.

It was the father of Eugene Soong, T. L. Soong, who bought up half a million bushels of soybeans before the Korean war in May, 1950.

Soybeans are used for cattle and human food, in manufacturing plastics and paints, and are essential for war production. And 56 Chinese bought up the huge quantity of 6,986,000 bushels on the Chicago Board of Trade at $2.34 a bushel.

Shortly thereafter the price began to climb. It soared and soared. Finally, five days after the Communists invaded Korea, the price hit $3.45-½ a bushel, and the group sold out.

T. L. Soong is the same man in charge of supplies sent over the Burma road at a time when a series of warehouse fires and "sabotage" caused the disappearance of large quantities of war material.

Shortly thereafter, Soong left for the United States on a diplomatic passport, and was moved into an even more important spot in Washington — chief procurement officer of Chinese war supplies.

Soong is still here. But, instead of handling war supplies, he is now speculating in soybeans at the expense of the American public.

Operations like this may be one reason why the disillusioned Chinese people threw out the Soongkung dynasty and accepted communism as a lesser evil.

Oil and Gold

Ex-Sen. Sheridan Downey of California recently met radio correspondent Rudy Block in a capitol corridor. Downey, who rose to political fame on an old-age pension scheme known as "Ham and Eggs," is now lobbying at $3,000 a month for Tidelands Oil.

"Well, Senator," said Block, as they shook hands. "I see it's from ham and eggs to oil and gold."

GOP Targets for '52

A frank outline of GOP campaign strategy for 1952 was presented to key Republican senators' assistants by Ab Hermann, the energetic national committee executive director, in a private meeting the other night.

The tall, banjo-eyed Hermann, onetime big-league ballplayer, confided: "We won Senate seats last year wherever we took our gloves off. There were only two states we should have taken and didn't, and that was because our nominees refused to punch hard—Missouri and Connecticut.

"Why," complained Herman, "we had to bootleg speakers like McCarthy into Connecticut."

The "prime targets" in 1950, he said, were Scott Lucas in Illinois; Francis Myers in Pennsylvania; Elbert Thomas of Utah, and Millard Tydings of Maryland.

Turning to Frank Smith, assistant to Sen. John M. Butler, who defeated Tydings, Hermann continued: "We did a beautiful job in Maryland and Utah, Frank. I don't see why the Democrats yelled so much amout the composite picture in your campaign, when, by comparison with the anti-Thomas newspaper in Utah, your publicity was like a country gentleman's."

He referred to the fact that in Utah, a supposed "Congressional Record" with statements attacking Thomas as a pro-Communist was circulated to all mailboxes in the last hours of the campaign—so late that Thomas had no opportunity to reply.

"We all know Senator Thomas was not a Communist," Hermann explained, "but these tactics were necessary to balance the Pseudo-Liberal newspapers which were for him."

Pointing to Dick Cardall, administrative aide to Sen. Arthur Watkins of Utah, Hermann continued: "There's the fellow who gets a lot of credit for the victory. Senator Bennett (the Republican who beat Thomas) is very much indebted to him."

The 1952 target areas, Herman indicated, were to retain all Republican seats in the New England and Atlantic states, and pick up new senators in Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming.

"On the other hand," he said, pointing to a map behind him," "we could lose four or five senators. Quite frankly, even if there is a sweeping Republican victory for president, we still may not control the Senate."

Today in Washington

With Taft in Front, Truman Mentions 'Ike' to Confuse Republicans on Nomination

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 16—President Truman may or may not be as adept as his predecessor in keeping folks guessing about his political intentions in advance of a national convention but certainly he has shown himself lately quite adroit in throwing confusion into the camp of his opponents.

For there are a lot of political tongues wagging today as a result of Mr. Truman's willingness to discuss whether General Eisenhower is or is not available as a Presidential nominee in 1952. Having banned questions as to his own possible candidacy, Mr. Truman must have a very good reason for his surprising comment to the press that he regarded the Eisenhower letter of January 22, 1948, as applying only to that year.

Actually there is nothing in the letter of disclaimer which puts a time limit or any other reservation on the general's refusal to accept a nomination for the presidency if tendered him. The circumstances haven't changed a bit. He is still being mentioned for nomination by the Republicans or the Democrats.

Mr. Truman has taken advantage of this unprecedented background to volunteer a comment he really didn't have to make. The only reason the political minded here think could have promoted such a move was to throw a monkey wrench into the Republican party. For everyone knows that at the moment Senator Taft of Ohio is out in front. He has the backing of the organized groups of Republicans in many states. Nobody else is actively lining up many delegations. It is true that Governor Dewey and former Governor Stassen and several other prominent Republicans have come out in favor of General Eisenhower but it is also true that the General has never publicly said whether he is a Republican or Democrat.

The Republican Convention of 1952 takes place ahead of the Democratic Convention. The drive for Eisenhower will collide head on there with the Taft boom. Those persons on the Taft side who have been saying the 1948 letter by the General disqualifies him now find President Truman saying he doesn't think so. If anything, this adds a bit of momentum to the movement behind Eisenhower on the Democratic side and makes it possible for the Democrats to name him if the Republicans don't. Conceivably Mr. Truman may be thinking that his own party may draft Eisenhower and if they do it is important to begin to remove the 1948 letter as an obstacle. Or is he trying to make sure the Republicans name Eisenhower so that the issue can turn on military versus civilian power—something that came up recently in the MacArthur controversy?

But what does the letter itself say? Here are the pertinent passages in General Eisenhower's letter:

"It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to the civil power will be best sustained when lifelong professional soldiers, in the absence of some obvious and overriding reason, abstain from seeking high political office . . .

"Politics is a profession, a serious, complicated and, in its true sense, a noble one. In the American scene, I see no dearth of men fitted by training, talent, and integrity for national leadership. On the other hand, nothing in the international or domestic situation especially qualifies for the most important office in the world a man whose adult years have been spent in the country's military forces. At least that is true in my case."

Some day in the not far distant future General MacArthur will be concurring publicly as he has been doing privately to callers in that 1948 observation of General Eisenhower. Maybe President Truman thinks so too, but that wouldn't prevent him from throwing General Eisenhower's hat in the race if only to embarrass Senator Taft. Anyway, the final words of General Eisenhower's letter to Leonard Finder, publisher of the Union Leader of Manchester, New Hampshire, were without reservation of any kind as the general wrote: "I know you will not object to my making this letter public to inform all interested persons that I could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me."

There wasn't anything in the letter of 1948 which makes the above reasoning applicable only to that year and not to the year 1952. Men have been nominated for the vice presidency and have declined to accept. General Eisenhower may be the first to do the same thing if a presidential nomination is offered by a convention — unless, of course, America is in the middle of a world war and the people need and want a military man to be their commander-in-chief.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, July 15—My opinion may seem unduly pessimistic, but I say the people of the United States have lost their constitutional government to the overriding institution of unionism and I undertake to prove that they have. This fact is the worst because not one person in a hundred thousand, or make it a million, realizes that it is a fact. It is more worse (CQ) because my belief and my proof can be laughed out of the minds of people who should be convinced and alarmed.

Unionism was advertised as a project to establish for the individual worker a power to deal collectively with a big adversary on the owner's side of the table. A Communist song, put out during the treasonous insurrections which gave rise to the CIO, said "the boss won't listen when one guy squawks but he's gotta listen when the union talks—." That was the vulgar gist of unionism.

There was no knowing concession by the people of the United States nor by any unit of our government from the precinct up to Washington that a union had any rights which were not explicity awarded to any other person or group. It had no express or implied right to threaten anyone with death or physical injury; no right to kill or hurt people or destroy or damage property; no right to interfere with the mails or interstate commerce or to pour money into elections for the purpose of defeating candidates and issues inimical to the lawless excesses of unionism.

But, because the union formerly represented a type of citizen who had been getting a raw deal from some employers, and not only from the big ones, public sentiment made the serious mistake of condoning riots and other violence. Public opinion did not object to the open solicitation of union support by politicians who made no bones about promising to let unions violate the laws if they were elected. So unions presently came to enjoy a privilege of lawless misbehavior which is now confirmed by court decisions and legislation as a right. The Constitution has not been changed but it has been overridden.

When you read in the New York Times, as you often will, that "labor" takes a certain stand on some issue, you are the victim of a willful deception and imposition by a paper which pretends to be truthful and to deserve your confidence. Nobody knows better than the Times that the Washington force which it refers to as "labor" is not "labor" but a small group of presumptuous individuals in Washington who exercise a power befitting public officers but have no credentials from the public. They do not have even credentials from the voluntary members, who may be a minorty, of their own unions. They just say they were elected but they don't have to prove it. And the total membership of all their unions together is, roughly, no more than one-sixth or one-fifth of "labor." So, for ulterior but determined reasons, the Times constantly puts over on its trusting clientele a subtle misrepresentation in favor of a violent, lawless element.

The Times is not alone in this deception. It is a common error or crime of slipshod or dishonest journalism. But the Times is the more guilty because it can not possibly claim to be careless or uninformed. It knows that the name "labor" is full of amiable or noble meaning. It knows that, at most, the element which the union bosses claim to represent is only a small and debatable proportion of "labor," and is used to commit outrageous crimes against lawful government and the rights of the citizens. Such an element cannot be held to be amiable or noble. Conscientious journalism has no excuse to misrepresent its character in this way.

The subject is very large but it is not tangled as the enemies of the Constitution would have us believe it is. It is plain the national government has officially helped criminals to compel citizens to join unions against their will and to suffer extortion under penalty of suspension, expulsion and fines.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Remember the olden days, when saloons were called saloons, good beer was a nickle and free lunch to go with it. Saturday nights, after my father closed his drug store, often a friend would bring in a pail of foaming cold beer, while a ring of Polish bologna would be cooking. The beer and bologna were certainly a delicious combination. Years later, Prohibition changed all that, and it seems that type of beer never came back. Neither my father nor I could ever touch it again, coffee and tea seemed good enough. Talking to an old-time saloonkeeper, she told me that even flies stopped congregating around the present beer as it did around the old time stuff and she thinks perhaps they used to put in more molasses in it. Perhaps some of the old time beer makers can explain the difference of old time beer and now.

I just wonder how many local people own the "Valley of the Hudson, River of Destiny" set of books. Volume III has the biography of some of our Kingstonians. The books are beautifully bound and run about 500 pages. On page 278 of this volume is the following write up on Joseph J. Morgan (published around 1931) when he was principal of the Moran Business School.

"Mr. Morgan is successfully carrying forward the work instituted by his uncle, John J. Moran, with whom he was associated for many years. Assisting Mr. Morgan are his two sisters, Catharine and Helen. Prior to 1918, Alice, another sister also helped. Before teaching at this school, around 1910, Mr. Morgan was employed by the New York Central Railroad Co. in secretarial and accounting capacities till about January 1, 1917, when he began teaching at Moran School.

"The Moran Business School established in 1914 by the late John J. Moran, who was born in Kingston, August 15, 1855 and died July 10, 1920. He was principal of Public School No. 1 in 1876. In July of 1881 he became principal of then Public School No. 15 until January 1, 1888 when he was elected school commissioner. In 1903 he was made president of Spencer's Business School of which he had become part owner and continued until 1911 when he sold his interest. He resumed teaching privately at his home at 121 Pearl street and was so successful that he rented offices at 288 Wall street and so began the Moran Business School under his own name. He employed Miss L. M. Doty, well known shorthand teacher. On May 1, 1915 he moved to larger quarters in the Burgevin building and through all these years it now has come to pass as the only school of its kind in Kingston.

"Joseph Morgan's father, Peter Morgan, was a plumbing contractor of Poughkeepsie. He married Teresa Moran, a Kingston girl. Her father, Hugh Moran, came from Athlone, County Roscommon, Ireland. He was one of the pioneer merchants of Wilbur, conducting a general store. Joseph, Catharine, Helen and Alice Morgan were born in Kingston and made good in Kingston, that's how it should be."

Steam Power Days

By FRANK TRIPP

I was brought up in a town where were made a majority of the steam fire engines used around the world. Also one of the now almost extinct stationary compounds, direct connected to generators which then furnished electricity for every building of any size. Unlimited central station power was still to come.

One's neighbors were very likely to be engaged in making or running power-producing machinery, working on a railroad or making steel rails. The whole populace seemed to be making something that revolved or had to do with going places, even down to bicycles. Elmira was sort of a transplanted Southern New York community of New England Yankee mechanics, sprinkled with Pennsylvanians who crossed the border only six miles away. The unique name of thriving Penn Yan, to the north, reflects this early influx; Penn for Pennsylvanians and Yan for Yankees.

So it was just newspaper readers' misfortune that I didn't follow the locomotive career of my forebears, something that I've kind of regretted to this day. The era of the Diesel softens the regret for I'm sure that my dad would never have accepted it as a locomotive.

* * *

JUST THE SAME, though but a kid, I was a passenger train engineer exactly 50 years ago this Summer. It was a ten-car, 20-passenger train, so de luxe that it didn't carry baggage. The railroad wasn't as long nor as broad as the New York Central, but my engine was a miniature of the famous 999 which held world records up to that time.

It was in an amusement park; the Little Giant Railroad, one third or a mile long and two feet wide. Rides were a nickel, which included without extra charge a liberal spatting of soot and cinders which women escorts of their children carried away on their white shirtwaists. They complained but the kids didn't mind.

On occasion there were added thrills. Such as the time we hit a dog and the engine tipped over. Two park hands helped me right her, so quickly that I didn't even have to pull the fire.

Then there was the busy Sunday that the 999 blew a cylinder head. My pop, who often spent his off days watching me run her, showed me how to block her ports, disconnect the main rod and run her on one side the rest of the day. To help her start her train, I had to give her a push to get her off center, then jump on.

It was so much fun that I begrudged the week I took off to go to the Pan American Exposition in Buffalo, where President McKinley was shot. That event got me a job on a newspaper. That's how this September I'll be finishing my 50th newspaper year.

Steam engines then gave the thrill of the jet bomber today; small towners went to the station to see the trains come in. City folks got an equal kick out of fire engines, the steam ones drawn by horses. I've tried to describe them to my grandchildren who never saw one; like I've tried to tell them about the Fourth of July.

Gee, come to think of it, what a lot they've missed. The first motion pictures showed a fire engine coming at the audience head on. Youngsters screamed and leaped from their seats.

WHAT WONDERFUL horses they were! Three to a team—great broad, panting, intelligent beasts, trained to their job like circus animals. The fire gong to them meant action. Automatically their stall doors opened; they'd dash to their places, sidle under their hanging harnesses and in an instant be under way.

Water in the fire engine boiler was kept preheated, nearly to the boiling point. As the engine passed over a burning gas jet the firebox was lighted. Smoke and sparks poured from the stack within a block. By the time the fire was reached steam was up and the engine was ready to pump.

But it was the galloping horses, the clang of the bell, the roar of the heavy apparatus over cobble pavements; the stream of sparks, the following rigs and bicycles trailing behind, that made a fire alarm as exciting to adults as to their children.

Principally it was the horses. They never outlived their training. An aged pair of them, pastured to a truckman, one day were passed by a fire engine; but only for an instant. They caught up, nearly killed themselves in the effort, and scattered a load of furniture over ten blocks.

The gas engine and electricity have contributed most to power progress. Almost everything we do is dependent upon them. We do lots more, do everything easier and faster, but do we have as much fun?

When both sides are bidding away like mad you often get the chance to settle for a sure profit. It doesn't pay, of course, to sell out too cheap—but it's even more unprofitable to wind up with a loss simply because you're too greedy.

The best rule is to bid as naturally as possible in these situations. Double when you have good defensive values; keep bidding when you have good offensive values; pass and leave it up to your partner when you have already told your story.

Today's hand is a lesson for the average player rather than for the expert. West doubles four diamonds because he has good defensive values—including four trumps that may produce a trick and that are sure to be troublesome to declarer in any case.

Some experts might get away with passing four diamonds. East might then bid five clubs—and an expert East would make that contract. I suspect that most average players would find five clubs a very difficult contract. Maybe they'd make it, and maybe they wouldn't.

The double of four diamonds yields a far surer profit. What's more, if the East-West cards are well played the double will bring in just about as much revenue as an East-West game at Clubs.

West opens the king of clubs against four diamonds, holding the trick. He sees the singleton spade in dummy and acts promptly to eliminate ruffing tricks. That is, he leads a trump at the second trick.

South wins and leads a spade. West steps up with the jack of spades and leads a second trump. That ends the threat of a spade ruff.

South wins the second trump and leads a second spade, whereupon the defenders win and return to clubs. South must ruff and lead a third spade. The defenders merely continue clubs to make declarer ruff a second time.

By this time declarer has only as many trumps as West. He can never bring in a spade trick, but is limited to his six trumps. South is set 700 points, less 100 for honors. That's perfectly good value for a somewhat doubtful game at clubs. I'll take 600 points every day of the week.

Albany, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—The State Commerce Department said today that more than 2,100,000 families in New York have annual incomes of $3,000 or more, which it described as "substantially higher than the national average." Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Remember the olden days, when saloons were called saloons, good beer was a nickle and free lunch to go with it. Saturday nights, after my father closed his drug store, often a friend would bring in a pail of foaming cold beer, while a ring of Polish bologna would be cooking. The beer and bologna were certainly a delicious combination. Years later, Prohibition changed all that, and it seems that type of beer never came back. Neither my father nor I could ever touch it again, coffee and tea seemed good enough. Talking to an old-time saloonkeeper, she told me that even flies stopped congregating around the present beer as it did around the old time stuff and she thinks perhaps they used to put in more molasses in it. Perhaps some of the old time beer makers can explain the difference of old time beer and now.

I just wonder how many local people own the "Valley of the Hudson, River of Destiny" set of books. Volume III has the biography of some of our Kingstonians. The books are beautifully bound and run about 500 pages. On page 278 of this volume is the following write up on Joseph J. Morgan (published around 1931) when he was principal of the Moran Business School.

"Mr. Morgan is successfully carrying forward the work instituted by his uncle, John J. Moran, with whom he was associated for many years. Assisting Mr. Morgan are his two sisters, Catharine and Helen. Prior to 1918, Alice, another sister also helped. Before teaching at this school, around 1910, Mr. Morgan was employed by the New York Central Railroad Co. in secretarial and accounting capacities till about January 1, 1917, when he began teaching at Moran School.

"The Moran Business School established in 1914 by the late John J. Moran, who was born in Kingston, August 15, 1855 and died July 10, 1920. He was principal of Public School No. 1 in 1876. In July of 1881 he became principal of then Public School No. 15 until January 1, 1888 when he was elected school commissioner. In 1903 he was made president of Spencer's Business School of which he had become part owner and continued until 1911 when he sold his interest. He resumed teaching privately at his home at 121 Pearl street and was so successful that he rented offices at 288 Wall street and so began the Moran Business School under his own name. He employed Miss L. M. Doty, well known shorthand teacher. On May 1, 1915 he moved to larger quarters in the Burgevin building and through all these years it now has come to pass as the only school of its kind in Kingston.

"Joseph Morgan's father, Peter Morgan, was a plumbing contractor of Poughkeepsie. He married Teresa Moran, a Kingston girl. Her father, Hugh Moran, came from Athlone, County Roscommon, Ireland. He was one of the pioneer merchants of Wilbur, conducting a general store. Joseph, Catharine, Helen and Alice Morgan were born in Kingston and made good in Kingston, that's how it should be."

Steam Power Days

By FRANK TRIPP

I was brought up in a town where were made a majority of the steam fire engines used around the world. Also one of the now almost extinct stationary compounds, direct connected to generators which then furnished electricity for every building of any size. Unlimited central station power was still to come.

One's neighbors were very likely to be engaged in making or running power-producing machinery, working on a railroad or making steel rails. The whole populace seemed to be making something that revolved or had to do with going places, even down to bicycles. Elmira was sort of a transplanted Southern New York community of New England Yankee mechanics, sprinkled with Pennsylvanians who crossed the border only six miles away. The unique name of thriving Penn Yan, to the north, reflects this early influx; Penn for Pennsylvanians and Yan for Yankees.

So it was just newspaper readers' misfortune that I didn't follow the locomotive career of my forebears, something that I've kind of regretted to this day. The era of the Diesel softens the regret for I'm sure that my dad would never have accepted it as a locomotive.

* * *

JUST THE SAME, though but a kid, I was a passenger train engineer exactly 50 years ago this Summer. It was a ten-car, 20-passenger train, so de luxe that it didn't carry baggage. The railroad wasn't as long nor as broad as the New York Central, but my engine was a miniature of the famous 999 which held world records up to that time.

It was in an amusement park; the Little Giant Railroad, one third of a mile long and two feet wide. Rides were a nickel, which included without extra charge a liberal spatting of soot and cinders which women escorts of their children carried away on their white shirtwaists. They complained but the kids didn't mind.

On occasion there were added thrills. Such as the time we hit a dog and the engine tipped over. Two park hands helped me right her, so quickly that I didn't even have to pull the fire.

Then there was the busy Sunday that the 999 blew a cylinder head. My pop, who often spent his off days watching me run her, showed me how to block her ports, disconnect the main rod and run her on one side the rest of the day. To help her start her train, I had to give her a push to get her off center, then jump on.

It was so much fun that I begrudged the week I took off to go to the Pan American Exposition in Buffalo, where President McKinley was shot. That event got me a job on a newspaper. That's how this September I'll be finishing my 50th newspaper year.

Steam engines then gave the thrill of the jet bomber today; small towners went to the station to see the trains come in. City folks got an equal kick out of fire engines, the steam ones drawn by horses. I've tried to describe them to my grandchildren who never saw one; like I've tried to tell them about the Fourth of July.

Gee, come to think of it, what a lot they've missed. The first motion pictures showed a fire engine coming at the audience head on. Youngsters screamed and leaped from their seats.

WHAT WONDERFUL horses they were! Three to a team—great broad, panting, intelligent beasts, trained to their job like circus animals. The fire gong to them meant action. By this time declarer has only as many trumps as West. He can never bring in a spade trick, but is limited to his six trumps. South is set 700 points, less 100 for honors. That's perfectly good value for a somewhat doubtful game at clubs. I'll take 600 points every day of the week.

Couple Arrested For Leaving Tots Hungry, Unclad

Valley Stream, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—A young artist and his socially prominent wife were summoned before a judge today on charges of leaving their two small children hungry and unclad while they went to a party.

The accused, David Van Tosh, 27, and his wife, Lenore, 22, were arrested early yesterday. Their hearing in Mineola district court before Judge Samuel Greason was adjourned until today.

Mrs. Van Tosh is the daughter of Attorney Marsden Bayard Candler, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Patrolman John Stankard arrested the Van Toshes when they arrived home. He was waiting for them in their home after being summoned by neighbors who heard the children crying.

The policeman said he entered the home through an open front door and found the unclad children—Diana, 2½ years old, and Lenore, 16 months, crying in a living room littered with empty bottles and full ashtrays.

Women neighbors helped him dress and feed the children, the policeman said.

In court, Mrs. Van Tosh's father at first said he wanted to represent the couple, but he stepped aside when Judge Greason said they would have to plead immediately to neglect charges.

The Van Toshes were then given the adjournment to obtain counsel. They were released in their own custody.

Two Busy Officers

New York, July 16 (AP)—Police Sergeant William J. Cotter and Patrolman Sam Sapan had a busy afternoon yesterday. They helped thwart two attempted suicides, one of them by actress Joyce Mathews. First, they helped revive Miss Mathews, former wife of comedian Milton Berle, after she slashed her wrists in the apartment of showman Billy Rose. A few hours later, they were summoned to the Hotel Woodward, 55th street and Broadway, just around the corner from Rose's apartment. At the hotel, they pulled Mrs. Estelle Ryan off a window ledge. She was screaming "I'm going to jump now." Mrs. Ryan, a New Yorker, was quoted by police as saying she had quarreled with her husband.

Jacoby on Canasta

Follow Rules and Enjoy Game

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"The other night," relates a distressed Canasta player of Topeka, Kansas, "I made a canasta with six queens and one wild card. The next time around the player at my right discarded a queen. The pack was not frozen, so I tried to pick it up, putting the queen on my canasta. Much to my surprise, this started quite an argument.

"My opponents said I could not take the queen since I already had a canasta of queens. I said that I could take the queen according to the official rules. They agreed on that point, but said that we were not following the official rules. We asked our hostess which rules were to be played in her home, but she didn't want to decide. She said we could toss a coin, if we liked, but that she found it more fun to listen to an argument than to get into it.

"What is the correct answer to our problem? Also, how should such matters be settled?"

These are difficult questions to answer. Since several readers have sent me this type of question, however, I'd better answer them to the best of my ability.

To begin with, many people like to make up new rules for Canasta. Some of those "rules" make sense, and some of them don't; but that's not the important point. If people have more fun following foolish rules, more power to them.

The official rule in this situation is that the player is allowed to pick up the queen and add it to her canasta. At the same time, of course, she picks up the rest of the discard pile. The fact that she already has a canasta of queens does not prevent her from taking the queen.

Once you depart from the official rules, you're at sea. Some people often say that you can pick up a queen in this situation. Others say that you can't pick up up the queen, and also that the opponents can never pick up a queen either. Still others say that it's all right to pick up a natural pair of queens in your hand (which is possible if you have used only four or five natural cards in making your canasta).

There is no problem if all the players at the table can agree on which rules they are following. If they can't agree on the rules, they ought to find an umpire (usually the host or hostess) to settle the question for them. If they can't find an umpire, then tossing a coin is as good as any way to settle it. The only thing that really matters is to find some face-saving way to stop the argument and get back to enjoying the game.

Would Release Reserves

Washington, July 16 (AP)—A House Armed Services subcommittee has called for release as soon as possible of all reservists serving on active military duty involuntarily. Such action, the subcommittee said in a report issued Saturday, would make "partial rectification" for what it described as injustices in reserve call-ups since fighting began in Korea.

Washington, July 16 (AP)—There may be 11 cups of coffee in the next year where there were only 10 last year, the Agriculture Department said yesterday. Reporting that probable production for export in coffee areas will be 33,000,000 bags, or 3,000,000 more than during the past season, the department quickly added that the price probably won't come down.

Getting Ships Ready

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The 45,000-ton battleship Iowa and two 27,000-ton Essex class carriers, not identified, are being taken out of the mothballs and put in "standby status." This action, announced by the navy Saturday, means the ships will be made ready for sea duty and manned with skeleton crews quickly expandable to full wartime strength.

READING OTHER'S MAIL

A letter says: "A friend gave me a book to read and between the pages I came upon a very personal letter from a man. (The friend is married.) The letter was not in an envelope but was between the pages. I'm sure when she discovers it there after I've had the book she will be humiliated, and this discovery may even cause her to shun me. Should I return the book with the letter in it as it was, or destroy the letter? She evidently doesn't even know it is still around!"

Not only destroy it, but forget its contents. And remember, too, that nothing is so easily misinterpreted as the written word.

Sending Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: If there is a wedding and one is not invited, does sending a wedding gift put the family in the position of feeling that they either ought to have sent me an invitation or that they should still send me one? I don't want that.

Answer: It would almost certainly have this result, unless sent so late as to be impossible for them to get an invitation to you.

Birthday Parties Require Presents?

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it in good taste to give birthday parties each year for the children? It seems that this is always a bid for presents!

Answer: The custom of giving a yearly party has brought its own result in being accepted as an occasion when no more than the most trifling gift is a requirement.

One Shower Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be wrong for several of us to get together and buy one gift instead of each bringing a separate gift, to give at a shower?

Answer: If you know of something the guest of honor especially want, this would be the most practical plan to follow.

Hat at Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: Should a woman guest wear a hat, or some definite hair covering to an evening church wedding?

Answer: Yes.

Are you planning a small church wedding or a wedding at home? FACING UP TO IT—New among toys being readied for next Christmas is the "scribbles" doll, which literally can have a thousand faces. The molded plastic face has no features. HANOVER'S HANG-OVER HOUSE — This unique "floating" house is one of the exhibits at a construction fair in Hanover, Germany. Its creators claim it can hold more than 1900 persons.

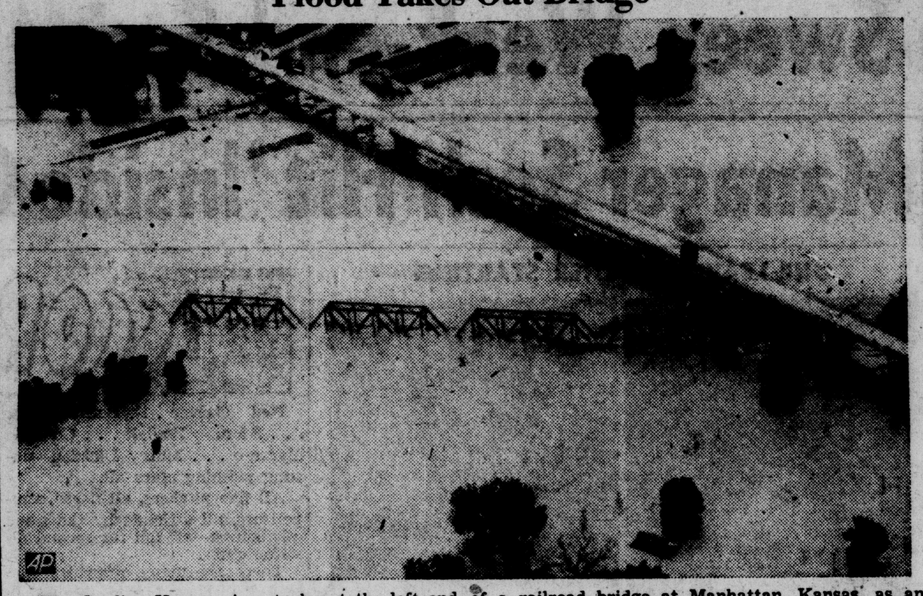
Flood Takes Out Bridge



The flooding Kansas river took out the left end of a railroad bridge at Manhattan, Kansas, as an unprecedented volume of water poured downstream after several days of torrential rains. Note the four-room house, swept away by water, caught at the right end of the railroad bridge. Severe restrictions were clamped on the 900,000 residents of the metropolitan area of Kansas City, Mo., as officials fought to maintain essential services disrupted by flood and fire. Flood and Fire Menace Kansas City Area

Firemen in water to their hips fight a fire that destroyed a flooded fuel tank depot and lumber-yard in Kansas City, Mo. Overturned tank contained part of 500,000 gallons of gasoline, diesel oil and naphtha that exploded and burned. The burning oil spreads over water in the background to light up the charred supports marking the site of the lumber yard. Gov. Forrest Smith declared a state of emergency for the entire state of Missouri as surging flo od waters started down the Missouri river. All Kansas City's non-essential industries in the Kansas City area were ordered closed. (AP Wirephoto).

FLOODED WITH FUN—The worst floods in western Missouri's history brought disaster to thousands of persons, but to young Bob Hartman of Kansas City, they just meant fun. He rode his bike through the rain-swollen waters of the nearby Little Blue River, which had washed out bridges background) on U. S. Highway 71.

Too Hungry to Incubate

It is believed that the cuckoo could not continue to survive as a species unless it placed its eggs in the nests of other birds to be hatched. Largest of the insectivorous birds, it needs so much food that it must spend most of its time hunting it and probably could not live if it tried to incubate its own eggs.

It is estimated that 20 per cent of the nation's steel and 30 per cent of its pig iron are made in Pennsylvania, mostly in the industrialized western section of the state.

Sausage Names

Sausage making became an art in the Middle Ages. Some sausages popular today derived their names from the cities in which they originated, as for example: Frankfurters (Frankfort), bologna (Bologna, Italy), romano, (Rome), genoa salami (Genoa).

As Pegler Sees It

table projects which he and his Italian-American colleagues have been financing in sovereign nations across the seas. The government of the United States and, in their official and semiofficial capacities, many government functionaries, have given Dubinsky aid and comfort and thus have helped him to degrade American citizens under his rule, to the status of subjects. This is a particular case. But it is typical of the conduct of the government in helping the institution of unionism to impose on millions of citizens by circumventing the Constitution.

Who elected Dubinsky to what? Nobody ever elected him to any public office. The election process in most unions is a tragic farce. The bosses elect themselves endlessly until they die. Or they get tired and permit their young rivals to buy them out and retire them into "emeritus" status on big pensions under iron-clad contracts. Some "elect" themselves for life.

The vote of a national "convention" of the hodcarriers, for example, and this is only a typical example, not a freak case, is cast, by "delegates." The "delegates" are screened by a "committee on credentials." The "committee" is appointed by the president and his personal cabinet, who make sure that hostile delegates are not seated. If a "popular" vote is taken, the boss and his men "count" the ballots except in a few unions whose bosses maintain a Hitlerian popularity by means of petty "security" benefits, which the subjects pay for with their own money.

But government consults these union bosses on great decisions affecting all the people. For all their mutual show of hostility, big unions and big employers work together. Big employers ought to fight them in every detail, but many of our giants of business are so selfish that they knowingly sell out our country for their own convenience.

The magnate thinks he has done something smart in making a deal with the unions which goes right past the workers. They may hate the bosses of their union and suffer terrible injustice and denial of their rights as citizens. The employer is promoting communism in making a deal for a mass of labor with the United Auto Workers. But he is 50 years old or more, and he figures that he will not be here when communism comes. He is thinking secretly of the big pensions which he and the board of directors will begin to draw down in a few years by means of a racket which such magnates have been slipping over on the stockholders in recent years.

Stalin's Daughter Marries Again; $900,000 Wedding

London, July 16 (AP)—Russia's Prime Minister Stalin reportedly has married off his daughter Svetlana to the son of a Politburo member in a $900,000 blaze of splendor.

Reports of the wedding were published in the London Sunday Express and in three Italian publications. The reports were variously attributed to "Iron Curtain newspapers" and to Russian sources in Geneva.

Mihail Kaganovich, son of Politburo member Lazar Kaganovich, was named as the groom. Svetlana, 27, has been married before and in 1945 had a child, but the reports of the new marriage made no mention of her first husband.

The Rome newspaper Momento Sera said the Russian dictator first opposed the marriage because the groom was Jewish, but that Stalin later relented and ended up hosting a $900,000 wedding. The Sunday Express said Svetlana's wedding dress cost $280,000.

The reports gave this picture of the nuptials:

The wedding took place July 3. Only 160 guests—and no eastern or western diplomats—attended.

Pink Crimean champagne, sweet Armenian peach brandy and vodka flowed until dawn. Many guests "eventually became the worse for wear and slept off the effects in the palatial anterooms of the Kremlin."

Svetlana and her groom now are honeymooning in the satellite countries of Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Local Communists there have been ordered to spare no expense in entertaining them.

Killed by Stone

New York, July 16 (AP)—One man was killed and two others seriously injured by a three-foot piece of stone coping which fell three stories from an upper Manhattan building early today. The injured were taken to Harlem Hospital with leg fractures.

Revokes Bail

New York, July 16 (AP)—A federal judge today revoked $5,000 bail supplied by the Civil Rights Congress bail fund in the deportation case of Peter Harisiades, 47, Greek newspaperman accused of former membership in the Communist party. It was the second court attack on the validity of the fund's bail. Last week Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan called the Civil Rights Congress "irresponsible" and revoked bail it supplied for 14 second-string Communist leaders.

Dewey in Formosa

Taipeh, Formosa, July 16 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey told Nationalist Chinese leaders today "our struggle on the side of freedom will triumph." The touring New York governor spoke at a luncheon at the city hall. "The American people have a bond of friendship for the Chinese people which no Communist can break," Dewey said. He added that he saw increased opportunity for this traditional friendship to grow in the years ahead.

Stalin's Daughter Marries Again; $900,000 Wedding

London, July 16 (AP)—Russia's Prime Minister Stalin reportedly has married off his daughter Svetlana to the son of a Politburo member in a $900,000 blaze of splendor.

Reports of the wedding were published in the London Sunday Express and in three Italian publications. The reports were variously attributed to "Iron Curtain newspapers" and to Russian sources in Geneva.

Mihail Kaganovich, son of Politburo member Lazar Kaganovich, was named as the groom. Svetlana, 27, has been married before and in 1945 had a child, but the reports of the new marriage made no mention of her first husband.

The Rome newspaper Momento Sera said the Russian dictator first opposed the marriage because the groom was Jewish, but that Stalin later relented and ended up hosting a $900,000 wedding. The Sunday Express said Svetlana's wedding dress cost $280,000.

The reports gave this picture of the nuptials:

The wedding took place July 3. Only 160 guests—and no eastern or western diplomats—attended.

Pink Crimean champagne, sweet Armenian peach brandy and vodka flowed until dawn. Many guests "eventually became the worse for wear and slept off the effects in the palatial anterooms of the Kremlin."

Svetlana and her groom now are honeymooning in the satellite countries of Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Local Communists there have been ordered to spare no expense in entertaining them.

Revokes Bail

New York, July 16 (AP)—A federal judge today revoked $5,000 bail supplied by the Civil Rights Congress bail fund in the deportation case of Peter Harisiades, 47, Greek newspaperman accused of former membership in the Communist party. It was the second court attack on the validity of the fund's bail. Last week Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan called the Civil Rights Congress "irresponsible" and revoked bail it supplied for 14 second-string Communist leaders.

Dewey in Formosa

Taipeh, Formosa, July 16 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey told Nationalist Chinese leaders today "our struggle on the side of freedom will triumph." He added that he saw increased opportunity for this traditional friendship to grow in the years ahead.

Pittsfield Electrics Sweep Week-end Series From Colonials, 6-0, 6-5

George McPhail Loses No-Hitter in Ninth

Folks at municipal stadium—nearly 2,000 strong—were dazzled twice Saturday night.

The first time by George McPhail's sensational one-hitter for the Pittsfield Electrics. A few moments later by the brilliant display of pyrotechnics.

A ninth-inning, two-out single by Manager John Sosh ruined a classic pitching performance by the hawk-faced Pittsfield righthander who is roaring toward 30 victories.

The win was McPhail's 17th of the campaign against four defeats. He faced only 31 batters—two reaching first on errors, another on a walk and Sosh's single, a legitimate hit to right center. McPhail faced only 31 batters as the Electrics wrapped up the victory, 6 to 0.

McPhail returned to balk the Colonials 7 to 6 last night before 287 of the faithful, relieving starter Dan Katulka in the ninth and retiring Manager Sosh for the third out with the tying run on third base.

Placentino Homers

Lou Palmisiano's eighth-inning homer, a sharp liner to the right field corner, was the winning blow for Pittsfield.

Leading 6 to 5 going into the ninth, the Electrics' "$100,000 franchise" would not entrust its fate to anybody but this same McPhail guy. Danny Katulka bowed out for a pinch hitter in the top of the ninth.

Vince Canepa, who went the distance for the Colonials, launched the ninth with a single to short center, his second hit of the game. Kern sacrificed beautifully but McPhail got Dennis Healey on a loft to right field. That put it squarely up to Manager Sosh, the "spoiler" of the night before. Pitcher and batter jockeyed around on a few tosses before Sosh hit sharply to shortstop where the brilliant Charlie Ruddock scooped up the ball and fired to first to end the game.

Tie Score in Seventh

Piacentino's homer cut Pittsfield's lead to 3-1 in the second. Nick Marino doubled and scored on an infield out in the sixth and Kingston picked up three runs in the seventh to tie the count at 5-5.

Canepa started the rally with a single to center and Kern got a life on Ruddock's boot. Canepa moved to third on Healey's fly to deep center and scored on Sosh's safety to left. Marino singled to center scoring Kern and when first baseman Winters fired the relay back into centerfield trying to nail Marino going into second, Sosh scored with the tying marker.

McPhail retired the first 10 men to face him in Saturday's contest before Joel Kern was safe on Jack Moore's miscue. Charlie Aspromonte was safe on another bobble in the sixth and Sam Piamentino drew a walk in the seventh.

The Electrics blasted starter Frank Seeley with a five run outburst in the second, the ingredients being a pair of walks, three singles, a double and Seeley's own fielding misplay.

Billows Repeats In Lincoln Golf

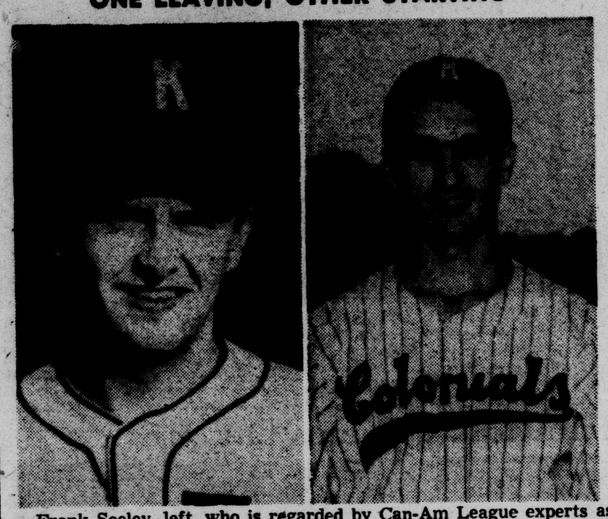
Manchester, Vt., July 16 (AP)—For the second straight year Ray Billows, the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., veteran, topped the star-studded Robert Todd Lincoln Memorial Invitation golf tourney field.

Billows defeated Henry J. Kowal, also of Poughkeepsie, 4 and 3, in yesterday's final match at Ekwanok.

In the semi-finals, Billows eliminated Guy Bates of Philadelphia, 1 up and Kowal topped, James Healey of Orange, Conn., 3 and 2.

Manager Sosh Hit 'Inside Curve' to Wreck No-Hitter

ONE LEAVING, OTHER STARTING



Frank Seeley, left, who is regarded by Can-Am League experts as one of the top prospects in the loop, has been recalled by the Albany Senators of the Eastern League. He pitched his last game for Kingston Saturday night against George McPhail's one-hitter. He leaves with a record of 3 wins and 8 defeats. Big Sam Piacentino, right, will make his pitching debut for the Colonials against the Oneonta Red Sox tonight at the stadium. Big Sam, who started his career as a pitcher, has been sharp in relief roles and has not been scored on. (Freeman Photos).

Can-Am Loop Rejects Merger With Border

Can-Am Roundup

(By The Associated Press)

The Oneonta Red Sox won a four-game week-end series from Rome and jumped back into a nip-and-tuck battle with the Pittsfield Electrics for the Canadian-American League pennant.

The Sox and the Electrics are tied in the second half of the loop's split schedule, each has eight wins and three losses. Oneonta took the first half by only a half-game margin over Pittsfield.

The first-half of the split schedule ended July 2.

Oneonta dumped the Rome Colonels twice yesterday, 1-0 and 15-2. Righthander Jim De Frederico spun his first shutout of the season in the opener.

Pittsfield edged the Kingston Colonials, 6-5, and the Amsterdam Rugmakers squeezed a victory out of the third-place Gloversville Glovers, 5-4.

In Saturday's tilts, Oneonta topped Rome twice, 7-2 and 2-1, and Pittsfield shut out Kingston, 6-0. Gloversville nipped Amsterdam, 5-4.

Six Present Teams To Finish Season

Canadian-American League directors on Saturday rejected a proposal to absorb the four-club Border League in a meeting held at Gloversville.

The move had been planned in a last-ditch effort to keep the Border League teams in operation.

The directors also voted not to transfer any existing league franchises.

After considerable discussion, the directors decided that the pennant winner would be decided by a single game between the winners of the first and second halves of the loop's split schedule.

Final plans for the post-season Shaughnessy playoffs will be ironed out in the regular monthly meeting in Rome on August 18.

All club directors assured the league that they would complete the 1951 schedule.

Dead Heat Finish In Stock Races

Stan Disbrow and Dee Carlson, two veterans of the Rhinebeck Speedway stock car races, finished in a dead heat for first place in the 25-lap feature Saturday night.

A display of fireworks followed the races.

Bob Tator made it a three-car duel until the 21st lap when Disbrow and Carlson took charge for the remainder of the distance. When the checkered flag dropped, it was ruled a dead heat finish.

Third place money went to Bob Tator. Bob Disbrow finished fourth and Jack Nichols was in fifth place.

Women's Tourney At Twaalfskill

The annual Twaalfskill Women's Invitational golf tournament will be held on Tuesday. About 60 golfers representing nine mid-Hudson area golf clubs are expected to compete.

THE SCOREBOARD

Ned Garver . . . Bob Hooper . . . Sam Zoldak . . . Conrado Marrero . . . Murry Dickson—unsung pitching stars all.

All fine pitchers, all fierce competitors, all stricken by the same misfortune—all toil for second division clubs.

There are many observers who rate Garver the best pitcher in the American League. The 25-year-old righthander has won 12 games for the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns.

Garver does not pick his spots, either, seven of his dozen triumphs have been against the contenders. He whipped the league-leading Red Sox 3-1 on five hits yesterday as the Browns held Boston to a split in their doubleheader.

The Red Sox won the nightcap, 9-5, to widen their lead to two games over the Chicago White Sox who suffered two stunning upsets at the hands of the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-1 and 5-0.

Hooper Jinx

Hooper, 29-year-old righthander, mastered the White Sox for the third time this season, and Zoldak yielded only one hit as the seventh-place Athletics twice humbled Paul Richards' crew. The only hit off Zoldak was a third-inning single by Chico Carrasquel, who was immediately picked off first. Sad Sam faced only 27 men.

Hooper's home run in the top of the ninth with two mates aboard gave Philadelphia its first-game win. Until then, he had been locked in a scoreless duel with Randy Gumpert. Ferris Fain, A's first baseman, suffered a broken bone in his foot and will be out about a month.

Chicago's one bright spot was the fielding of Carrasquel. Chico set a league record for errorless chances at shortstop, 289, in 51 games. The old mark of 288 was held by New York's Phil Rizzuto.

Marrero, diminutive Cuban righthander, won his ninth game against only five losses for Washington as the sixth-place Senators split with Cleveland. After Marrero won the opener, 7-4, the Indians took the second behind Mike Garcia, 7-2.

Gil Coan of Washington collected five hits in the doubleheader to take over the league's batting lead with a .336 average. The split left the Indians 3½ games off the pace.

Yankees Split

The Yankees divided a pair in Detroit to move up within three-tenths of a percentage point of the second-place White Sox. After Fred Hutchinson had pitched the Tigers to a 5-3 victory, the Yankees eked out an 8-7 night win. It took a nifty relief job by Allie Reynolds in the ninth to snap the Yanks' losing ways.

Brooklyn's league-leading Dodgers lost a doubleheader for the second straight day as Cincinnati spanked them, 5-3 and 6-5. However, the Brooks' lead was shaved only one game, to eight, as both the St. Louis Cards and New York Giants were held even in twin bills.

Dickson, Pittsburgh's little righthander, held the Giants hitless in four superb relief innings to register his 11th win as the last-place Pirates won the first game, 7-6, in 12 innings. The Giants took the second game, 8-3, as Jim Hearn hurled his eighth victory, his fourth over the Pirates.

Ewell Blackwell limited the Dodgers to seven hits in winning his ninth game for Cincinnati in the opener. He also walloped his first major league home run. Johnny Schmitz, former Cub, failed to last for the fourth straight time as he was charged with Brooklyn's loss.

Philadelphia's Phils whipped the Cards, 6-4, after St. Louis had won the opener, 7-4. Stan Musial paced St. Louis to its first-game win with his 17th and 18th homers.

After Warren Spahn had blanked Chicago, 7-0, the Cubs came back to whip the Boston Braves, 10-4. The Cubs' Dutch Leonard registered his seventh victory in relief in the opener. The shutout was Spahn's fifth. He has nine wins.

Mickey Mantle To Kansas City

Detroit, July 16 (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the most publicized rookie of 1951, is back in the minor leagues.

The 19-year-old New York Yankee outfielder, who rocketed to fame on the strength of a .403 batting mark and numerous home runs in spring training, was optioned to Kansas City yesterday.

Mantle was sent down to the Yankees' American Association farm club to make room for Art Schallock, little lefthander from Hollywood. Schallock is slated to hurl today's game against Detroit.

Despite his demotion, Mantle still is regarded very highly by the Yankee bigwigs. So much so, that he is to be groomed to fill the shoes of Joe DiMaggio in center field when the great Yankee star is expected to end his glorious career next season.

"Mantle still is going to be a great player," said Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees. "He has to learn to bunt better and pick good pitches to swing at. The habit of striking out so much must be corrected. He is a pretty good outfielder right now but needs some polishing to be able to play center in the major leagues. He'll be back, you can be sure of that."

SPORTS

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA

Randolph Turpin could fight and hit a bit, it said here 12 days before the fight.

Editor Nat Fleicher of the Ring, who had seen Randy Turpin, spread the alarm, gave the Leamington Lad considerably more than an outside chance against Sugar Ray Robinson.

Yet to the great bulk of ringworms the result of the 15-round match in London was the most startling fight news in a long, long time.

Ray Robinson

Fight writers and broadcasters who developed with Robinson and the unskilled ring labor that accompanied him, had clothed Sugar Ray in a rich cloak of invincibility. The fact that Robinson had lost only once in 128 outings made his armor appeal all the more imposing. What the boys overlooked was that the Harlem Hot Shot's reputation largely was built on licking stubby Jake LaMotta five out of six times. You saw what Irish Bob Murphy did to the Bronx Bull.

Randy Turpin

• Turpin Was Totally Unimpressed:

Robinson's trouble at Earl's Court was that his handlers forgot to tell young Turpin that no one had a Chinaman's chance with Sugar Ray. The British-born Negro is half deaf, so might not have heard had anyone brought up Robinson's reputation. He trained in North Wales, so didn't have an opportunity to be awed by the block-long fuchsia-colored Cadillac in which the middleweight champion, his jester, personal barber and retinue of yes men gallivanted around Europe "spreading good will."

Robinson, on the other hand, got to believing his press clippings.

So highly did he regard Turpin that he booked an $84,000 touch as his seventh fight in 40 days, at the fag end of a European tour to be followed by a vacation on the Mediterranean.

Robinson unquestionably was not at his best against Turpin, but the youngest of the three fighting brothers, doesn't figure to fare any worse in a return engagement. He is eight years younger, and the title gives him the one thing he might have lacked previously—confidence.

It was nice to hear of a totally satisfactory fight in England, where the good fans are second to none. Too many fights in England have wound up in a quick knockout, the whining cry of a foul or a raucous squawk about the decision.

• Britain Has Had Some Pippins:

A fine old tradition of the British ring was largely constructed on highly-collapsible heavyweights who fell either all in one piece or in sections, like a brick wall. Bombardier Wells, Gypsy Joe Beckett, Phainting Phil Scott and Canary Jack Doyle contributed generously to the legend. Tommy Farr, the Welsh coal miner who carried the battle to Joe Louis for 15 rounds, was a rare exception.

From the middleweights down, however, the British Isles have had some pippins—the incomparable Jem Driscoll, Owen Moran, Freddie Welsh, Ted Kid Lewis, Jimmy Wilde, Bermondsey Billy Wells, Teddy Baldock, Alf Mancini, Jack Hood, Roland Todd, Ted Moore, Frank Moody and Jack Kid Berg, to name those who come to mind offhand.

So, you see, there was no reason in the world why England could not develop its first middleweight champion in 57 years, and the British are abundantly entitled to have a fighter they can stand up and cheer about.

If Randy Turpin never does another thing, he deserves a vote of thanks for silencing all the "greatest-ever" gab about Robinson.

The big rap against Turpin was that he didn't like it in the stomach. But, as the fellow said many years ago, who does.

It turned out, just like the more seasoned observers suspected, that Sugar Ray Robinson, when cut, bleeds just like anybody else.

"He hit an inside curve . . . it wasn't a particularly good pitch," Pittsfield's George McPhail described Manager John Sosh's ninth-inning, two-out single that ruined his no-hitter Saturday night before the largest crowd of the season at municipal stadium. McPhail, who seems like a cinch to win 30 games in the Can-Am League, said that was the closest he ever came to a no-hitter. "Pitched a few others," he continued, "but never lost the no-hitter that close to the end of the game."

It was a brilliant chore. He got help twice from his defense. Second baseman Jack Moore came up with a dazzling stop on Lou Kramberg's sharp grounder in the second and Lou Palmisiano made a nice running catch of Dennis Healey's blast to right center in the fifth.

Sosh's hit came on a 1-1 pitch. The Colonial skipper recalled busting up a couple others and "catch a few more."

Niro Suspended

News crackled all over the Colonials front during the week-end. New player help reported moving in today. Joe Niro has been suspended for "disciplinary reasons." No elaboration was given by the front office but it is presumed that Joe's suspension was the result of his refusal to get in uniform the day Manager Sosh took over.

The Albany Senators of the Eastern League have recalled pitcher Frank Seeley, who was top man on the Colonial pitching staff with Vince Canepa. Pat Colgin and Dale Jones of the Philadelphia Phillies chain spent a couple of hours with the Pittsfield battery men Sunday afternoon at the stadium. Colgin rates McPhail as a "good prospect," and this looks like the year for the 25-year old right hander should start moving up the ladder. Colgin will be recalled by some fans as the manager of the Carbondale club in the 1947 North Atlantic League.

Bespectacled Blaster

Manager Sosh has impressed local observers as a pretty tough cookie around that dish. He wears specs just for batting purposes. Nick Marino snapped out of his slump with three hits last night and Sam Piacentino got a pretty good piece of two balls. Now, if Lou Kramberg would only recover that early season magic.

Piacentino picked up a couple of meal tickets from Marion's Restaurant and Jake Senor's S&C Lunch for his homer. A year ago this time Big Sam had 10 homers. The Colonial management has announced another display of fireworks for the Saturday, July 28 game with Amsterdam.

Myron Goldman and his committee busy selling tickets for the big giveaway night on August 25. The Port Ewen Fife and Drum Corps will be an added attraction that night.

The CYO baseball regional finals between St. Mary's of Kingston and Wappingers Falls will precede the Colonial-Oneonta contest on Tuesday. Starts at 6:30 and you can see two games for one admission price.

Big Sam Piacentino makes his first start of the season for the Colonials tonight. That's right, Piacentino now pitching.

The true stork, the bird traditionally supposed to bring babies, is not found in the United States.

Home Unbeaten

Hamburg, Germany, July 16 (AP)—The University of Pennsylvania's 150-pound crew headed for home today without having tasted defeat in its travels about Europe. The Quakers' final victory came yesterday when they defeated Ruderverein of Kassel by one-length, covering the one-mile 400-yard stretch in 7:02 in the rain on Alster Lake.

Pittsfield Electrics Sweep Week-end Series From Colonials, 6-0, 6-5

George McPhail Loses No-Hitter in Ninth

Folks at municipal stadium—nearly 2,000 strong—were dazzled twice Saturday night.

The first time by George McPhail's sensational one-hitter for the Pittsfield Electrics. A few moments later by the brilliant display of pyrotechnics.

A ninth-inning, two-out single by Manager John Sosh ruined a classic pitching performance by the hawk-faced Pittsfield righthander who is roaring toward 30 victories.

The win was McPhail's 17th of the campaign against four defeats. He faced only 31 batters—two reaching first on errors, another on a walk and Sosh's single, a legitimate hit to right center. McPhail faced only 31 batters as the Electrics wrapped up the victory, 6 to 0.

McPhail returned to balk the Colonials 7 to 6 last night before 287 of the faithful, relieving starter Dan Katulka in the ninth and retiring Manager Sosh for the third out with the tying run on third base.

Piacentino Homers

Big Sam Piacentino stroked a homer over the left field fence to lead off the second inning last night to break a scoreless inning streak of 33 for the Colonials.

Lou Palmisiano's eighth-inning homer, a sharp liner to the right field corner, was the winning blow for Pittsfield.

Leading 6 to 5 going into the ninth, the Electrics' "$100,000 franchise" would not entrust its fate to anybody but this same McPhail guy. Danny Katulka bowed out for a pinch hitter in the top of the ninth.

Vince Canepa, who went the distance for the Colonials, launched the ninth with a single to short center, his second hit of the game. Kern sacrificed beautifully but McPhail got Dennis Healey on a loft to right field. That put it squarely up to Manager Sosh, the "spoiler" of the night before. Pitcher and batter jockeyed around on a few tosses before Sosh hit sharply to shortstop where the brilliant Charlie Ruddock scooped up the ball and fired to first to end the game.

Tie Score in Seventh

Piacentino's homer cut Pittsfield's lead to 3-1 in the second. Nick Marino doubled and scored on an infield out in the sixth and Kingston picked up three runs in the seventh to tie the count at 5-5.

Canepa started the rally with a single to center and Kern got a life on Ruddock's boot. Canepa moved to third on Healey's fly to deep center and scored on Sosh's safety to left. Marino singled to center scoring Kern and when first baseman Winters fired the relay back into centerfield trying to nail Marino going into second, Sosh scored with the tying marker.

Jack Moore homered for Pittsfield with the bases empty in the fourth.

McPhail retired the first 10 men to face him in Saturday's contest before Joel Kern was safe on Jack Moore's miscue. Charlie Aspromonte was safe on another bobble in the sixth and Sam Piamentino drew a walk in the seventh.

The Electrics blasted starter Frank Seeley with a five run outburst in the second, the ingredients being a pair of walks, three singles, a double and Seeley's own fielding misplay.

Billows Repeats In Lincoln Golf

Manchester, Vt., July 16 (AP)—For the second straight year Ray Billows, the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., veteran, topped the star-studded Robert Todd Lincoln Memorial Invitation golf tourney field.

Billows defeated Henry J. Kowal, also of Poughkeepsie, 4 and 3, in yesterday's final match at Ekwanok.

In the semi-finals, Billows eliminated Guy Bates of Philadelphia, 1 up and Kowal topped James Healey of Orange, Conn., 3 and 2.

Manager Sosh Hit 'Inside Curve' to Wreck No-Hitter

ONE LEAVING, OTHER STARTING

Frank Seeley, left, who is regarded by Can-Am League experts as one of the top prospects in the loop, has been recalled by the Albany Senators of the Eastern League. He pitched his last game for Kingston Saturday night against George McPhail's one-hitter. He leaves with a record of 3 wins and 8 defeats. Big Sam Piacentino, right, will make his pitching debut for the Colonials against the Oneonta Red Sox tonight at the stadium. Big Sam, who started his career as a pitcher, has been sharp in relief roles and has not been scored on. (Freeman Photos).

Can-Am Loop Rejects Merger With Border

Can-Am Roundup

(By The Associated Press)

The Oneonta Red Sox won a four-game week-end series from Rome and jumped back into a nip-and-tuck battle with the Pittsfield Electrics for the Canadian-American League pennant.

The Sox and the Electrics are tied in the second half of the loop's split schedule, each has eight wins and three losses. Oneonta took the first half by only a half-game margin over Pittsfield.

The first-half of the split schedule ended July 2.

Oneonta dumped the Rome Colonels twice yesterday, 1-0 and 15-2. Righthander Jim De Frederico spun his first shutout of the season in the opener.

Pittsfield edged the Kingston Colonials, 6-5, and the Amsterdam Rugmakers squeezed a victory out of the third-place Gloversville Glovers, 5-4.

In Saturday's tilts, Oneonta topped Rome twice, 7-2 and 2-1, and Pittsfield shut out Kingston, 6-0. Gloversville nipped Amsterdam, 5-4.

Six Present Teams To Finish Season

Canadian-American League directors on Saturday rejected a proposal to absorb the four-club Border League in a meeting held at Gloversville.

The move had been planned in a last-ditch effort to keep the Border League teams in operation.

The directors also voted not to transfer any existing league franchises.

After considerable discussion, the directors decided that the pennant winner would be decided by a single game between the winners of the first and second halves of the loop's split schedule.

Final plans for the post-season Shaughnessy playoffs will be ironed out in the regular monthly meeting in Rome on August 18.

All club directors assured the league that they would complete the 1951 schedule.

Dead Heat Finish In Stock Races

Stan Disbrow and Dee Carlson, two veterans of the Rhinebeck Speedway stock car races, finished in a dead heat for first place in the 25-lap feature Saturday night.

A display of fireworks followed the races.

Bob Tator made it a three-car duel until the 21st lap when Disbrow and Carlson took charge for the remainder of the distance. When the checkered flag dropped, it was ruled a dead heat finish.

Third place money went to Bob Tator. Bob Disbrow finished fourth and Jack Nichols was in fifth place.

Women's Tourney At Twaalfskill

The annual Twaalfskill Women's Invitational golf tournament will be held on Tuesday. About 60 golfers representing nine mid-Hudson area golf clubs are expected to compete.

The Scoreboard

Ned Garver . . . Bob Hooper . . . Sam Zoldak . . . Conrado Marrero . . . Murry Dickson—unsung pitching stars all.

All fine pitchers, all fierce competitors, all stricken by the same misfortune—all toil for second division clubs.

There are many observers who rate Garver the best pitcher in the American League. The 25-year-old righthander has won 12 games for the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns.

Garver does not pick his spots, either, seven of his dozen triumphs have been against the contenders. He whipped the league-leading Red Sox 3-1 on five hits yesterday as the Browns held Boston to a split in their doubleheader.

The Red Sox won the nightcap, 9-5, to widen their lead to two games over the Chicago White Sox who suffered two stunning upsets at the hands of the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-1 and 5-0.

Hooper Jinx

Hooper, 29-year-old righthander, mastered the White Sox for the third time this season, and Zoldak yielded only one hit as the seventh-place Athletics twice humbled Paul Richards' crew. The only hit off Zoldak was a third-inning single by Chico Carrasquel, who was immediately picked off first. Sad Sam faced only 27 men.

Hooper's home run in the top of the ninth with two mates aboard gave Philadelphia its first-game win. Until then, he had been locked in a scoreless duel with Randy Gumpert. Ferris Fain, A's first baseman, suffered a broken bone in his foot and will be out about a month.

Chicago's one bright spot was the fielding of Carrasquel. Chico set a league record for errorless chances at shortstop, 289, in 51 games. The old mark of 288 was held by New York's Phil Rizzuto.

Marrero, diminutive Cuban righthander, won his ninth game against only five losses for Washington as the sixth-place Senators split with Cleveland. After Marrero won the opener, 7-4, the Indians took the second behind Mike Garcia, 7-2.

Gil Coan of Washington collected five hits in the doubleheader to take over the league's batting lead with a .336 average. The split left the Indians 3½ games off the pace.

Yankees Split

The Yankees divided a pair in Detroit to move up within three-tenths of a percentage point of the second-place White Sox. After Fred Hutchinson had pitched the Tigers to a 5-3 victory, the Yankees eked out an 8-7 night win. It took a nifty relief job by Allie Reynolds in the ninth to snap the Yanks' losing ways.

Brooklyn's league-leading Dodgers lost a doubleheader for the second straight day as Cincinnati spanked them, 5-3 and 6-5. However, the Brooks' lead was shaved only one game, to eight, as both the St. Louis Cards and New York Giants were held even in twin bills.

Dickson, Pittsburgh's little righthander, held the Giants hitless in four superb relief innings to register his 11th win as the last-place Pirates won the first game, 7-6, in 12 innings. The Giants took the second game, 8-3, as Jim Hearn hurled his eighth victory, his fourth over the Pirates.

Ewell Blackwell limited the Dodgers to seven hits in winning his ninth game for Cincinnati in the opener. He also walloped his first major league home run. Johnny Schmitz, former Cub, failed to last for the fourth straight time as he was charged with Brooklyn's loss.

Philadelphia's Phils whipped the Cards, 6-4, after St. Louis had won the opener, 7-4. Stan Musial paced St. Louis to its first-game win with his 17th and 18th homers.

After Warren Spahn had blanked Chicago, 7-0, the Cubs came back to whip the Boston Braves, 10-4. The Cubs' Dutch Leonard registered his seventh victory in relief in the opener. The shutout was Spahn's fifth. He has nine wins.

Sports

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA

Randolph Turpin could fight and hit a bit, it said here 12 days before the fight.

Editor Nat Fleicher of the Ring, who had seen Randy Turpin, spread the alarm, gave the Leamington Lad considerably more than an outside chance against Sugar Ray Robinson.

Yet to the great bulk of ringworms the result of the 15-round match in London was the most startling fight news in a long, long time.

Ray Robinson

Randy Turpin

Fight writers and broadcasters who developed with Robinson and the unskilled ring labor that accompanied him, had clothed Sugar Ray in a rich cloak of invincibility. The fact that Robinson had lost only once in 128 outings made his armor appeal all the more imposing. What the boys overlooked was that the Harlem Hot Shot's reputation largely was built on licking stubby Jake LaMotta five out of six times. You saw what Irish Bob Murphy did to the Bronx Bull.

• Turpin Was Totally Unimpressed:

Robinson's trouble at Earl's Court was that his handlers forgot to tell young Turpin that no one had a Chinaman's chance with Sugar Ray. The British-born Negro is half deaf, so might not have heard had anyone brought up Robinson's reputation. He trained in North Wales, so didn't have an opportunity to be awed by the block-long fuchsia-colored Cadillac in which the middleweight champion, his jester, personal barber and retinue of yes men gallivanted around Europe "spreading good will."

Robinson, on the other hand, got to believing his press clippings.

So highly did he regard Turpin that he booked an $84,000 touch as his seventh fight in 40 days, at the fag end of a European tour to be followed by a vacation on the Mediterranean.

Robinson unquestionably was not at his best against Turpin, but the youngest of the three fighting brothers, doesn't figure to fare any worse in a return engagement. He is eight years younger, and the title gives him the one thing he might have lacked previously—confidence.

It was nice to hear of a totally satisfactory fight in England, where the good fans are second to none. Too many fights in England have wound up in a quick knockout, the whining cry of a foul or a raucous squawk about the decision.

• Britain Has Had Some Pippins:

A fine old tradition of the British ring was largely constructed on highly-collapsible heavyweights who fell either all in one piece or in sections, like a brick wall. Bombardier Wells, Gypsy Joe Beckett, Phainting Phil Scott and Canary Jack Doyle contributed generously to the legend. Tommy Farr, the Welsh coal miner who carried the battle to Joe Louis for 15 rounds, was a rare exception.

From the middleweights down, however, the British Isles have had some pippins—the incomparable Jem Driscoll, Owen Moran, Freddie Welsh, Ted Kid Lewis, Jimmy Wilde, Bermondsey Billy Wells, Teddy Baldock, Alf Mancini, Jack Hood, Roland Todd, Ted Moore, Frank Moody and Jack Kid Berg, to name those who come to mind offhand.

So, you see, there was no reason in the world why England could not develop its first middleweight champion in 57 years, and the British are abundantly entitled to have a fighter they can stand up and cheer about.

If Randy Turpin never does another thing, he deserves a vote of thanks for silencing all the "greatest-ever" gab about Robinson.

The big rap against Turpin was that he didn't like it in the stomach. But, as the fellow said many years ago, who does.

It turned out, just like the more seasoned observers suspected, that Sugar Ray Robinson, when cut, bleeds just like anybody else.

"He hit an inside curve . . . it wasn't a particularly good pitch," Pittsfield's George McPhail described Manager John Sosh's ninth-inning, two-out single that ruined his no-hitter Saturday night before the largest crowd of the season at municipal stadium. McPhail, who seems like a cinch to win 30 games in the Can-Am League, said that was the closest he ever came to a no-hitter. "Pitched a few others," he continued, "but never lost the no-hitter that close to the end of the game."

It was a brilliant chore. He got help twice from his defense. Second baseman Jack Moore came up with a dazzling stop on Lou Kramberg's sharp grounder in the second and Lou Palmisiano made a nice running catch of Dennis Healey's blast to right center in the fifth.

Sosh's hit came on a 1-1 pitch. The Colonial skipper recalled busting up a couple others and "catch a few more."

Niro Suspended

News crackled all over the Colonials front during the week-end. New player help reported moving in today. Joe Niro has been suspended for "disciplinary reasons." No elaboration was given by the front office but it is presumed that Joe's suspension was the result of his refusal to get in uniform the day Manager Sosh took over.

The Albany Senators of the Eastern League have recalled pitcher Frank Seeley, who was top man on the Colonial pitching staff with Vince Canepa. Pat Colgin and Dale Jones of the Philadelphia Phillies chain spent a couple of hours with the Pittsfield battery men Sunday afternoon at the stadium. Colgin rates McPhail as a "good prospect," and this looks like the year for the 25-year old right hander should start moving up the ladder. Colgin will be recalled by some fans as the manager of the Carbondale club in the 1947 North Atlantic League.

Bespectacled Blaster

Manager Sosh has impressed local observers as a pretty tough cookie around that dish. He wears specs just for batting purposes. Nick Marino snapped out of his slump with three hits last night and Sam Piacentino got a pretty good piece of two balls. Now, if Lou Kramberg would only recover that early season magic.

Piacentino picked up a couple of meal tickets from Marion's Restaurant and Jake Senor's S&C Lunch for his homer. A year ago this time Big Sam had 10 homers. The Colonial management has announced another display of fireworks for the Saturday, July 28 game with Amsterdam.

Myron Goldman and his committee busy selling tickets for the big giveaway night on August 25. The Port Ewen Fife and Drum Corps will be an added attraction that night.

The CYO baseball regional finals between St. Mary's of Kingston and Wappingers Falls will precede the Colonial-Oneonta contest on Tuesday. Starts at 6:30 and you can see two games for one admission price.

Big Sam Piacentino makes his first start of the season for the Colonials tonight. That's right, Piacentino now pitching.

The true stork, the bird traditionally supposed to bring babies, is not found in the United States.

Mickey Mantle To Kansas City

Detroit, July 16 (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the most publicized rookie of 1951, is back in the minor leagues.

The 19-year-old New York Yankee outfielder, who rocketed to fame on the strength of a .403 batting mark and numerous home runs in spring training, was optioned to Kansas City yesterday.

Mantle was sent down to the Yankees' American Association farm club to make room for Art Schallock, little lefthander from Hollywood. Schallock is slated to hurl today's game against Detroit.

Despite his demotion, Mantle still is regarded very highly by the Yankee bigwigs. So much so, that he is to be groomed to fill the shoes of Joe DiMaggio in center field when the great Yankee star is expected to end his glorious career next season.

"Mantle still is going to be a great player," said Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees. "He has to learn to bunt better and pick good pitches to swing at. The habit of striking out so much must be corrected. He is a pretty good outfielder right now but needs some polishing to be able to play center in the major leagues. He'll be back, you can be sure of that."

Surrey, England, July 16 (AP)—Who says it's a man's world? Surely not Great Britain's male golfers.

A team of British male golfers—including four Walker Cup stars—yesterday met a group of American women players. Led by Babe Zaharias, the American girls won, 6½ to 2½ matches.

In the top match, the Babe whipped Leonard Crawley, former British Champion and a Walker Cupper, 3 and 2. The American women won all six singles, losing two foursomes and splitting another.

Carlino Tops Twi Batters

Tom Carlino, Jones Dairy veteran, has taken over the leadership in five batting departments in the City Baseball League, according to official figures released today by Secretary Joe Messing.

The chunky third sacker paces the home run derby with three and his .488 batting average is 11 points better than runnerup Felipe, of Old Capital Motors.

Carlino is also front running in runs with 12; hits, 13; and runs batted in 9. Felipe leads in doubles with four; and Charlie Neff has most stolen bases, 4.

Bill Tierney of Boulevard Gulf is the top pitcher with three wins and no setbacks and an earned-run average of 0.31. Jack Watzka of Ferraro's Bowlodrome leads in strikeouts with 34.

Trabert Upsets Larsen on Clay

Chicago, July 16 (AP)—Cincinnati's Tony Trabert, 20-year-old sophomore at the University of Cincinnati, today had come of tennis age with the National Clay Courts title in his keeping.

Trabert, 1951 National Intercollegiate champion, yesterday registered a five-set upset of the nation's top-ranked single star, Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., in the Clay Courts title match.

Trabert lost the first two sets, 8-6, 6-2 and trailed 0-3 in the third before rallying to win 6-4, 6-3, 8-6.

The 26-year-old Larsen seemed to have Trabert on the ropes with his hard left-handed smashes until the pause in the game for harping on the official's calling.

Trabert suddenly came to life and with powerful serves and sharp overhead drives, rallied to take the third set, 6-4. Trabert no longer let Larsen set the pace. Serving with terrific speed and over-powering Larsen's frequent lobs, Trabert took the fourth set 6-3.

Trabert forged into a 7-6 lead in the final set. With the score at deuce, Trabert aced Larsen for the ninth time in the match and sewed up the title with a hustling service that Larsen tagged, but couldn't push over the net.

It is estimated that 4,000,000 people starved to death in the 1943 famine in Bengal, India.

OPS Will Survey Prices in States

New York, July 16 (AP)—James G. Lyons, regional director of Price Stabilization (OPS) for New York and New Jersey, today announced plans for a survey of wholesale and retail grocery costs and prices.

The survey will be part of a nation-wide program of posted dollars - and - cents "community prices" in grocery stores.

The first survey of wholesalers will start July 30, and the first retail survey Aug. 2.

The survey, expected to last several weeks, will form the basis for the operation of the planned price program.

Teams from the seven OPS district offices in the New York and northern New Jersey area will make regular visits to hundreds of retail food stores and wholesale firms to gather information on grocery prices.

Throughout the nation, it was expected that 2,000 retail and 1,000 wholesale establishments will be visited by representatives of 84 district OPS offices.

Sample community price ceilings will be computed, for comparison with ceilings established under existing regulations, and with actual selling prices.

Lyons said information gathered from individual sellers will be kept confidential.

At the start, establishments will be visited every other week, but the schedule may be stepped up if conditions warrant.

State Crops Are Generally Good

Albany, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—The State Agriculture Department considers the crop prospects in New York "generally excellent."

The department said yesterday that on the basis of July 1 surveys the apple, peach, pear and sour cherry crops would be greater than in 1950. The grape and sweet cherry yields are expected to drop.

Larger harvests of field corn and oats were predicted. The yields of winter and spring wheat, rye and hay were expected to be slightly under the previous year. The barley production will be about the same, the department said.

It forecast a potato crop on Long Island of 18,480,000 bushels, compared to 17,155,000 last year. However, it said, the crop upstate may decline from 17,160,000 to 13,515,000 bushels.

Carlino Tops Twi Batters

Tom Carlino, Jones Dairy veteran, has taken over the leadership in five batting departments in the City Baseball League, according to official figures released today by Secretary Joe Messing.

The chunky third sacker paces the home run derby with three and his .488 batting average is 11 points better than runnerup Felipe, of Old Capital Motors.

Carlino is also front running in runs with 12; hits, 13; and runs batted in 9. Felipe leads in doubles with four; and Charlie Neff has most stolen bases, 4.

Bill Tierney of Boulevard Gulf is the top pitcher with three wins and no setbacks and an earned-run average of 0.31. Jack Watzka of Ferraro's Bowlodrome leads in strikeouts with 34.

Among primitive peoples in almost all parts of the world shell-money once was a popular medium of exchange.

Trabert Upsets Larsen on Clay

Chicago, July 16 (AP)—Cincinnati's Tony Trabert, 20-year-old sophomore at the University of Cincinnati, today had come of tennis age with the National Clay Courts title in his keeping.

Trabert, 1951 National Intercollegiate champion, yesterday registered a five-set upset of the nation's top-ranked single star, Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., in the Clay Courts title match.

Trabert lost the first two sets, 8-6, 6-2 and trailed 0-3 in the third before rallying to win 6-4, 6-3, 8-6.

The 26-year-old Larsen seemed to have Trabert on the ropes with his hard left-handed smashes until the pause in the game for harping on the official's calling.

Trabert suddenly came to life and with powerful serves and sharp overhead drives, rallied to take the third set, 6-4. Trabert no longer let Larsen set the pace. Serving with terrific speed and over-powering Larsen's frequent lobs, Trabert took the fourth set 6-3.

Trabert forged into a 7-6 lead in the final set. With the score at deuce, Trabert aced Larsen for the ninth time in the match and sewed up the title with a hustling service that Larsen tagged, but couldn't push over the net.

It is estimated that 4,000,000 people starved to death in the 1943 famine in Bengal, India.

OPS Will Survey Prices in States

New York, July 16 (AP)—James G. Lyons, regional director of Price Stabilization (OPS) for New York and New Jersey, today announced plans for a survey of wholesale and retail grocery costs and prices.

The survey will be part of a nation-wide program of posted dollars - and - cents "community prices" in grocery stores.

The first survey of wholesalers will start July 30, and the first retail survey Aug. 2.

The survey, expected to last several weeks, will form the basis for the operation of the planned price program.

Teams from the seven OPS district offices in the New York and northern New Jersey area will make regular visits to hundreds of retail food stores and wholesale firms to gather information on grocery prices.

Throughout the nation, it was expected that 2,000 retail and 1,000 wholesale establishments will be visited by representatives of 84 district OPS offices.

Sample community price ceilings will be computed, for comparison with ceilings established under existing regulations, and with actual selling prices.

Lyons said information gathered from individual sellers will be kept confidential.

At the start, establishments will be visited every other week, but the schedule may be stepped up if conditions warrant.

State Crops Are Generally Good

Albany, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—The State Agriculture Department considers the crop prospects in New York "generally excellent."

The department said yesterday that on the basis of July 1 surveys the apple, peach, pear and sour cherry crops would be greater than in 1950. The grape and sweet cherry yields are expected to drop.

Larger harvests of field corn and oats were predicted. The yields of winter and spring wheat, rye and hay were expected to be slightly under the previous year. The barley production will be about the same, the department said.

It forecast a potato crop on Long Island of 18,480,000 bushels, compared to 17,155,000 last year. However, it said, the crop upstate may decline from 17,160,000 to 13,515,000 bushels.

Actress Slashes Wrists While in Billy Rose Home

New York, July 16 (AP)—Actress Joyce Mathews, former wife of comedian Milton Berle, slashed her wrists yesterday in a suicide attempt while with showman Billy Rose in his plush midtown apartment.

The drama brought Berle to the hospital bedside of Miss Mathews. Rose summoned his wife, former Olympic swimmer Eleanor Holm, to the apartment located over the Ziegfeld Theatre.

Saul Richman, Miss Mathews' special manager, said she had called on Rose to discuss television work and newspaper reports linking her name with Rose's.

Miss Mathews "felt all her work would be jeopardized" because of the reports and that she would lose the custody of her daughter, Vicki, 6, Richman said.

Loves Blades, Her Excuse

In the hospital, where her condition was described as not serious, Miss Mathews was reported in good spirits. Asked by police to give the motive for her act, she replied:

"I just love razor blades."

Police further quoted her as saying that "there is no romantic tieup between me and Billy Rose. I have no romantic interest in him."

Rose called police to his apartment. "Hurry, see if you can save her," he pleaded. "She tried to commit suicide."

Using an axe and an oriental sword, police broke into a bathroom where they found the blonde, 31-year-old actress unconscious.

"I told her something," police quoted Rose as saying. "Then she ran into the bathroom, saying: 'I'm going to cut my wrists.'"

Police said Rose would not disclose what he said to Miss Mathews.

Afraid Of Publicity

Both Miss Mathews and Rose objected to her being treated at a hospital. They said they were afraid of adverse publicity.

Neither of the Roses would speak to newsmen. Mrs. Rose tried to shield the 50-year-old showman from photographers, but Rose disengaged himself and allowed the snapping of a few pictures.

Rose, who owns the Ziegfeld Theater and also maintains an east side apartment and a suburban home, is a consultant on television for the National Broadcasting Company.

He married the 37-year-old swimmer in 1939. He previously was married to the late comedienne Fanny Brice.

Miss Mathews and Berle, 43, first married in 1941, then remarried in June, 1949, after a 1947 divorce. The second marriage ended in 1950, when the actress went to the Virgin Islands for a second divorce.

The daughter, Vicki, was adopted by Berle and Miss Mathews.

Miss Mathews, the daughter of a retired Wall Street stockbroker, has appeared in movies, on Broadway, and currently on television. Her movies included "Artists and Models" and "The Big Broadcast of 1938."

Before her first marriage to Berle, she was married for about a year to Col. Gonzales Gomez, son of a former Venezuelan dictator.

Gets 120 Days

Joseph Dorsey, 34, of Washingtonville, was given 120 days in the county jail by Justice Upright following arrest Sunday by state troopers on a charge of assault, third degree. Dorsey was arrested in the town of Lloyd.

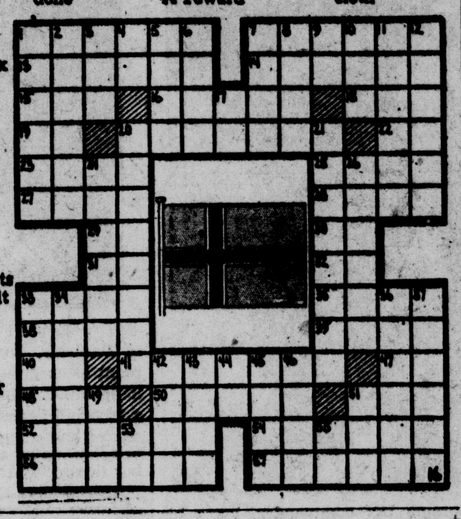
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Some Progress

the Communists were observing their agreement.

There were no armed guards along the route from the UN peace camp to Kaesong. There were none at the conference site.

North Korean military police were in Kaesong, as agreed Sunday, but they did not come near the meeting place. They carried Russian-type burp guns slung across their backs.

Randolph, three other correspondents and an army captain strolled freely through the city, trailed by 100 cheering children.

Some guards scowled at the party, but there was no incident.

Members of the official Communist party, who had remained wholly aloof Sunday, smiled and attempted to converse through interpreters with allied newsmen on Monday. Several Red photographers examined cameras carried by the Americans.

The UN and Red press parties arrived in Kaesong for the first time Sunday afternoon, and began busily photographing each other.

Patch-up Differences

In a two-hour session Sunday negotiators patched up differences that had led to the interruption of cease-fire talks. Allied headquarters announced conferees agreed:

"1. The road leading to the conference site shall be open to unrestricted use of vehicles of the United Nations command delegation. No notice will be required for such movement.

"2. The neutral area, five miles in radius, with a traffic circle in Kaesong as its center would contain no armed personnel except the minimum need for military purposes. Such personnel (military police) could be armed with small arms.

"3. Any personnel required for security at the conference site would be unarmed. The conference site would be defined as an area having a radius of one-half mile, centered on the conference house."

Things went so well in the session that some observers were hopeful the task of drawing up the agenda would be completed in a few days.

An official allied communique said:

"Significant of the desires of both delegations to get on with the main work of the conference was the complete absence of any controversy over the arrangement for neutrality of the site."

Joy opened Sunday's conference, launching without any preliminaries into the question.

An allied spokesman said the chief UN delegate spoke "very firmly, strongly and with intense feeling."

Injured in Jump

New York, July 16 (AP)—An unidentified man was injured seriously today when he hurled himself from a 33rd floor office window of the Empire State Building. His body landed on a projecting roof three floors below. Writhing in pain, he lay there until police reached him. Then he screamed, "Let me die—push me off the rest of the way."

Freedom Ordered

Screen Actress Madge Meredith (above) was ordered released from California's Tehachapi prison by Gov. Earl Warren. Miss Meredith, shown during her 1947 trial in which she was convicted of complicity in kidnaping and beating of her former business manager and his bodyguard, has been in jail since May, 1949, on a five-year to life sentence.

Resisted Officer

Ross Crawford, 18, New Paltz, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Leonard Newkirk of New Paltz Saturday on a charge of resisting an officer. Taken before Justice I. C. Barnes of New Paltz, Crawford was held for Grand Jury action.

General in Farewell

Somewhere in Korea, July 16 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond yesterday said goodbye to the U. S. 10th Corps which he led ashore at Inchon 10 months ago for the first allied victory of the Korean war. "No commander could ask more in battle accomplishment," the 58-year-old general said in his farewell to his troops. He turned over the command to Maj. Gen. Clovis E. Byers. Almond will head the War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. He left a forward air strip to the roar of 27 field guns. A band played "Auld Lang Syne."

Boat Recovered

A boat which was reported missing from Yankeetown Pond several days ago has been recovered. Sergeant Arthur A. Reilly of the state police reports the boat was found hidden in the brush near the pond. Several boys are reported to have taken the boat.

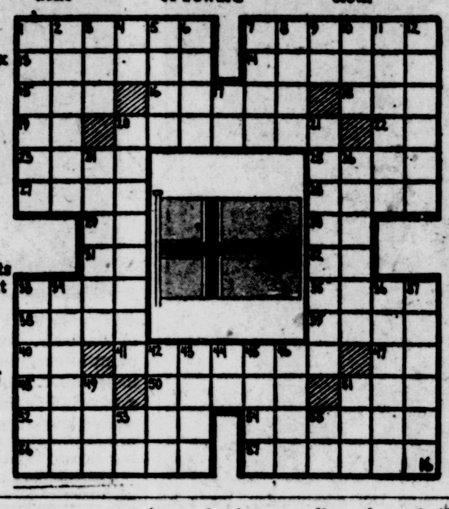
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Some Progress

the Communists were observing their agreement.

There were no armed guards along the route from the UN peace camp to Kaesong. There were none at the conference site.

North Korean military police were in Kaesong, as agreed Sunday, but they did not come near the meeting place. They carried Russian-type burp guns slung across their backs.

Some guards scowled at the party, but there was no incident.

Members of the official Communist party, who had remained wholly aloof Sunday, smiled and attempted to converse through interpreters with allied newsmen on Monday. Several Red photographers examined cameras carried by the Americans.

The UN and Red press parties arrived in Kaesong for the first time Sunday afternoon, and began busily photographing each other.

Patch-up Differences

In a two-hour session Sunday negotiators patched up differences that had led to the interruption of cease-fire talks. Allied headquarters announced conferees agreed:

"1. The road leading to the conference site shall be open to unrestricted use of vehicles of the United Nations command delegation. No notice will be required for such movement.

"2. The neutral area, five miles in radius, with a traffic circle in Kaesong as its center would contain no armed personnel except the minimum need for military purposes. Such personnel (military police) could be armed with small arms.

"3. Any personnel required for security at the conference site would be unarmed. The conference site would be defined as an area having a radius of one-half mile, centered on the conference house."

Things went so well in the session that some observers were hopeful the task of drawing up the agenda would be completed in a few days.

An official allied communique said:

"Significant of the desires of both delegations to get on with the main work of the conference was the complete absence of any controversy over the arrangement for neutrality of the site."

Joy opened Sunday's conference, launching without any preliminaries into the question.

Injured in Jump

New York, July 16 (AP)—An unidentified man was injured seriously today when he hurled himself from a 33rd floor office window of the Empire State Building. His body landed on a projecting roof three floors below. Writhing in pain, he lay there until police reached him. Then he screamed, "Let me die—push me off the rest of the way."

Freedom Ordered

Screen Actress Madge Meredith (above) was ordered released from California's Tehachapi prison by Gov. Earl Warren. Miss Meredith, shown during her 1947 trial in which she was convicted of complicity in kidnaping and beating of her former business manager and his bodyguard, has been in jail since May, 1949, on a five-year to life sentence.

Resisted Officer

Ross Crawford, 18, New Paltz, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Leonard Newkirk of New Paltz Saturday on a charge of resisting an officer. Taken before Justice I. C. Barnes of New Paltz, Crawford was held for Grand Jury action.

General in Farewell

Somewhere in Korea, July 16 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond yesterday said goodbye to the U. S. 10th Corps which he led ashore at Inchon 10 months ago for the first allied victory of the Korean war. "No commander could ask more in battle accomplishment," the 58-year-old general said in his farewell to his troops. He turned over the command to Maj. Gen. Clovis E. Byers. Almond will head the War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. He left a forward air strip to the roar of 27 field guns. A band played "Auld Lang Syne."

Boat Recovered

A boat which was reported missing from Yankeetown Pond several days ago has been recovered. Sergeant Arthur A. Reilly of the state police reports the boat was found hidden in the brush near the pond. Several boys are reported to have taken the boat.

Costliest

000,000 damage was caused the city by floods waters.

Water still covered about 400 blocks.

Evacuees began returning to their homes at Ottawa, Kas., one of the badly flooded towns. Water also was receding in the flooded areas of Manhattan, Osawatomie, Perry, Minneapolis, Beloit, Abilene, Salina, Oswego, Chanute, Salina and Iola.

In Missouri, Red Cross has opened up 18 additional shelters along the Missouri river between the east and west borders of the state. The headquarters in Washington estimated that more than 16,000 persons along that stretch were affected.

The Red Cross also has 33 shelters in Kansas. A preliminary allocation of $500,000 has been made by the Red Cross.

Huddle in Korea

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme UN commander, leans his hands on the wing of a small plane as he holds an informal huddle with Maj. Gen. Henry Hodes of the U. S. Eighth Army, one of the five UN peace negotiators, at Munsan, United Nations advanced peace camp in Korea. (AP Wirephoto).

Dr. Gibson Indicted in Spinster's Death

Dr. Donald Farnum Gibson (left) and Dr. Frank T. Genovese, both of Danbury, Conn., stand together outside Bridgeport, Conn., courtroom after grand jury investigating death of Elizabeth M. Ayes, 74, indicted Dr. Gibson for manslaughter. The grand jury failed to return a true bill against Dr. Genovese, who had been accused with Dr. Gibson of hastening Miss Ayres' death. The elderly spinster left her estate, estimated at $100,000, to Dr. Gibson. The jury charged he caused her death "by the gross and reckless administration of drugs."

Mercury Hits 91 Here Sunday

After a brief relief from five consecutive days of temperatures in the 90's the mercury spurted up to 91 yesterday in the city.

The high here for the month to date was 95 on July 10 which was one of the days from the 7th through the 11th when the mercury stayed high.

Meanwhile, New York city reported a compaaratively mild 88 yesterday. This, The Associated Press said, was "the highest of the year" in that city with a promise that it may be surpassed today. The New York high before yesterday, it said, was 87.4 on May 16.

The temperature here at 10:20 a. m. today was 84 degrees with a promise of a steady rise through the day.

The Weather Bureau predicted showers this afternoon or evening, but this will bring "scant relief" because the forecast is that "another scorcher is due tomorrow."

New York's record for a high on July 16, the report said, goes away back to 1887, and the record for July 15 was 94 in 1900.

The uptrend here began after milder temperatures on Thursday and Friday which gave brief respite from the previous five days.

High meat prices after World War 2 were a factor in the sharp drop in sheep raised for wool in the U. S.

'Welcomes U. S. Interest'

London, July 16 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison said today Britain welcomes "United States interest" in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute and wishes American Envoy W. Averell Harriman success in his mission to Tehran. Morrison refused to say, however, whether the British government would accept any form of mediation by President Truman's adviser on foreign affairs.

Waterman Is Held On Bail Default

Harold B. Waterman, 34, of 108 Murray street, Kingston, is being held in the county jail in default of $100 bail which was set by Justice of the Peace Percy Bush Saturday night when Waterman was arraigned on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Waterman will have a hearing before Justice Bush July 19 at 7 p. m.

State police at Lake Katrine were notified about 6 p. m. that a car of Patrick A. Clausi, which was parked off the highway near a quarry at East Kingston, had been struck by a car which proceeded toward Kingston. Police Officers Tomshaw and Martin later picked Waterman up on Delaware avenue and turned him over to the troopers.

Also Took Roast

Waterman was involved in another escapade that same night. George Roche of Acker's Hotel, East Kingston, called the sheriff's office and reported a man had stolen something from a kitchen in East Kingston. Deputy Sheriff Earl Conro was sent to the scene and found a six-pound pot roast had been taken from a stove while it was cooking. The roast was found in the Waterman car by Officer Conro and after a conference, Conro reported, the matter had been adjusted when restitution was made, Waterman paying $10.
